Developer shows shopping center plans to board

Ford Reiche, of General Properties—the Portland-based development firm planning to build a shopping center at the former Hanover Dowel Mill—will present a sketch of the planned mall to the Bethel Planning Board tonight (Wednesday). The meeting will be at the Telstar lecture hall, beginning at 7 p.m.

As reported in The Citizen last month, the planned mall will have 60,000 square feet of shopping space and will be situated on the six-acre parcel at Cross Street and Bridge Street; it currently has old drying sheds on it. The proposed name for the mall is Bethel Crossing.

General Properties has a purchase and sale agreement with the J.A. Thurston, Co., of Rumford, which purchased the former Hanover Dowel Mill from Wallace Saunders last winter, following a fire at Thurston's Rumford mill. The agreement covers only the six acres with the drying sheds, although General Properties also has a right of first refusal on the remaining four acres on which the mill factory itself is situated.

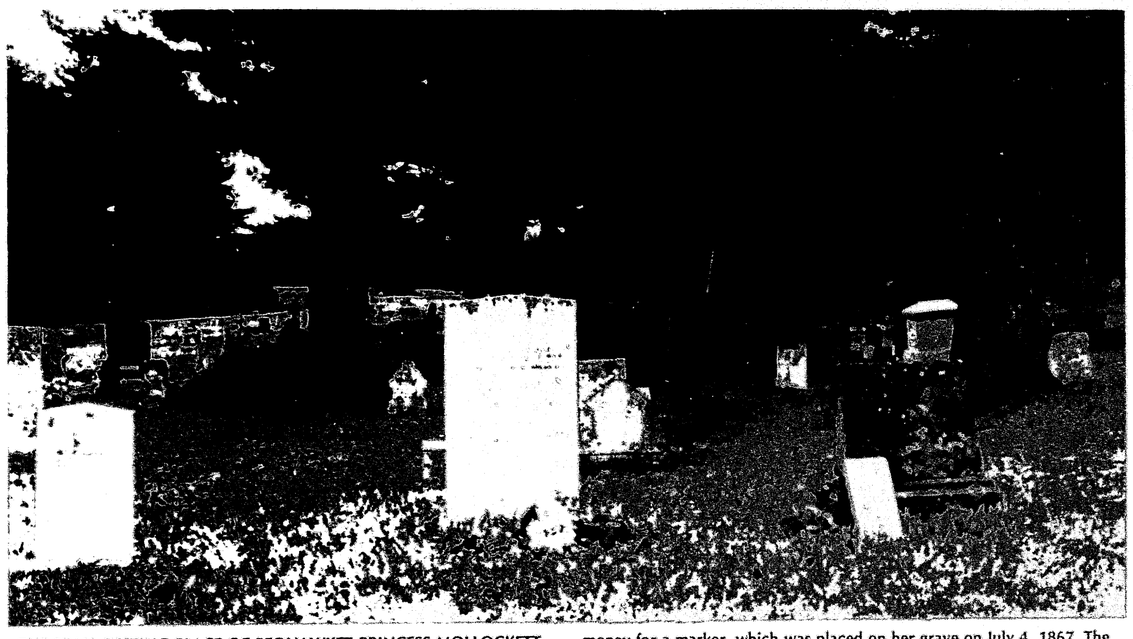
While the developer and the leasing agent—Gillies Realty—do not have all the prospective tenants lined up, they are hopeful of having a supermarket, a fast food restaurant, a regular restaurant, and other shops and offices.

Mr. Reiche, of General Properties, says the town is ready for a new shopping center. "Main Street is cramped, and you need room for expansion," he said. Also, he noted, population is growing. "There has been a change in the demographics up there [in the Bethel area]. There's more heads."

He said his presentation before the Planning Board tonight will be just a "conceptual plan."

No closing date has been set for the sale of the property, although the leasing agent has said the developer wants to open the mall next summer.

Marathon Industrial, which had been interested in purchasing the property from Wallace Saunders, has filed a lawsuit in superior court in Portland against Mr. Saunders and against the J.A. Thurston Co.



THE FINAL RESTING PLACE OF PEQUAWKET PRINCESS MOLLOCKETT, for whom Bethel's Mollyockett Day festival is named, is in the Woodlawn Cemetery, in Andover. Princess Mollockett, a friend and nurse to early settlers in the Bethel area, spent the final days of her life in Andover, dying there in 1816. Fifty years later the women of the Andover church raised money for a marker, which was placed on her grave on July 4, 1867. The cemetery is located on Route 5 south of the village center. Princess Mollyockett's grave can be found in the older part of the cemetery, a few rows in and somewhat to the left of center. Bethel's Mollyockett Day festival is this Saturday, with the parade at 11 a.m. (Photo by Michael Daniels)

New building fee rates take effect in Woodstock

The new building fee schedule adopted last month by the Woodstock Planning Board took effect July 1 and now covers all new construction in the town.

The fees are as follows:

- Woodsheds, storage sheds, decks and porches, additions to existing structures, replacement of a mobile home, and new foundations—$10.;
- Garages, barns and stables, and renovations (when total project cost exceeds $1,000)—$20. (Note: there is no charge for energy-saving renovations such as window replacement, new siding with insulation, new doors, etc.)
- Single-family dwellings, apartment buildings and condominiums (per unit), mobile homes, modular homes and renovations, and additions to an existing commercial use—$40.
- Commercial buildings and renovations to an existing building that would result in a change of use to a commercial site—$75.

Plumbing permit fees are: $60 for a septic system, $6 per fixture, and $200 for an engineered system handling 2,000 gallons per day.

W'stock officials interview 3 for town manager job

Woodstock selectmen are interviewing three candidates to fill the town manager's position. The interviews are scheduled to conclude this week.

The three finalists were selected from 14 applicants for the position, which has been vacant since March, when the selectmen declined to renew the contract of the town's first town manager, Kathleen Mersereau. She had served just one year.

The selectmen hope to make an offer as early as next week, First Selectman George Hooper said, and possibly to have the new manager on the job by Aug. 1.

The majority of the resumes received for the position were from within the state, but the job (which was advertised in the Portland Press Herald and the Lewiston Sun) also attracted applicants from as far away as Florida and Nebraska.

The applicants for the most part lacked significant training or experience in municipal government. They came from a wide variety of backgrounds: business and data processing managers, the military and law enforcement, even a teacher. According to their resumes, many are currently unemployed.

The selectmen hope to hire someone with a background in municipal government, Mr. Hooper said, and the three candidates they have chosen to interview appear to be the strongest in this area.

Laurie Smith, of Brunswick, is a 1986 graduate of the University of Maine at Orono, with a degree in public management. She is currently working as a temporary administrative assistant in Portland.

Vernon Maxfield, of South Waterford, is a former Waterford selectman and was that town's full-time town clerk, treasurer and tax collector from 1985 to 1988. He has also worked as an appraiser.

The final candidate, Rockie Graham, of Albany Township, graduated from the University of Southern Maine in 1986 with a degree in Public Policy and Management. She has held a variety of management positions, including with Hurricane Island Outward Bound and the Maine Nuclear Referendum Committee.

W'stock selectmen seek new ideas on managing boat landing/picnic site

At their July 19 meeting, the Woodstock Board of Selectmen will discuss the clearing and cleanup work now going on at the town's boat landing at the foot of Lake Christopher.

According to First Selectman George Hooper, at least one abutter has expressed concern that the cleanup will result in more problems with swimming and partying at the landing.

Town Meeting this year voted to accept the state's offer to turn the landing back to the town. According to the terms of the conveyance, the town is obliged to maintain the parcel as a boat access site. The conveyance states: "The lot or parcel with any improvement thereon shall automatically revert to the State of Maine should the lot or parcel not be used as a public outdoor recreational access site, or should the inhabitants of the Town of Woodstock fail to provide care for the lot or parcel as a boat access site."

To keep up its end of the bargain, the town has begun clearing scrub from the area around the landing and from along the dam (also town property) that abuts it.

"We'd like to get it to the point where we could keep the area mowed," Mr. Hooper said. "The selectmen feel that if we can clean it up and create a park-like atmosphere where people can launch their boats and have a picnic, then people will appreciate it more and take better care of it."

The downside, Mr. Hooper said, is that if more people are using the area there may be more problems with late-night partying, swimming (the landing is not intended to be used as swimming spot), and with people using the woods as a toilet.

The selectmen have discussed various ways of dealing with such problems, Mr. Hooper said, and the matter is on the agenda for their July 19 meeting. Anyone with concerns, or suggestions, is welcome to attend.

With the legal status of the town's two other waterfront access points still unresolved, Mr. Hooper said, the selectmen feel the landing could play a very important role in insuring that Woodstock residents and others continue to have adequate access to the lake.

Newry selectmen talk taxes with state

The Newry Board of Selectmen spent most of their meeting yesterday (Tuesday) talking with Roland Mayhew, of the state Bureau of Taxation.

Mr. Mayhew was in town to see if the town's revaluation accurately reflected market values. He compared a number of the revalued properties with recent sale prices and found that some were higher, some lower, and mostly within the ballpark. He will later assign the state's valuation on property within the town, and it is this valuation that will help determine the amount of aid the state will give the school district—richer districts receiving less aid. The state valuation of the town is also the basis for levying the annual school assessment.

Newry officials began their revaluation last year, beginning with newer construction, such as the condominiums, and completed the process earlier this year, finishing with the older houses.

One taxpayer was in to speak with the selectmen Tuesday about his property's revaluation.

Jonathan Smith, who helped the town office computerize the tax bills this year, turned in all the required reports pertaining to the computerized tax lists.

Heat and absentees curtail board meeting

The SAD #44 Board of Directors made a number of routine personnel appointments at the their regular meeting Monday night, but due to four members being absent, the board tabled scheduled discussions of its committee structure and executive session procedures.

The meeting, held in a very hot Telstar library, lasted only 25 minutes.

The following personnel appointments were approved: Debra Michaud, as clerk/receptionist for the Telstar complex; Barbara Dunham, as an elementary physical education teacher; Mary Newcomb, as K-6 math curriculum coordinator (stipend—$1,000); Elizabeth O'Meara, as lead teacher at the Crescent Park School (stipend—$500); Tony Berryment, as middle school head soccer coach (stipend—$955); and Elaine Hutchins, as high school assistant field hockey coach (stipend—$700).

The board also approved Amy D. Smith as a special education instructional aide to work with a handicapped Kindergarten student at CPS. Because the student is from Albany, the state will reimburse the district for the cost of this appointment.

Mollyockett Day this Saturday

The Bethel Lion's Club, Bethel Rotary Club and the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce have set the following schedule of events for the annual Mollyockett Day, this Saturday, July 16 (rain date July 17) to be held in and around Bethel Common. Fun for all ages is planned as well as a variety of food, crafts and entertainment.

7:45-10:30 a.m.—Mollyockett Day Classic. A one-mile run for children 14 and under and a five-mile race for men and women. Beautiful prizes donated by area merchants, as well as T-shirts for the first 100 registrants. Call 824-2282 to register.

9 a.m.-4 p.m.—Bethel Library book sale on the library lawn.

11 a.m.—Mollyockett Day parade—The theme is "The year of the Olympics." The parade begins on Mechanic and Railroad streets, winds up Main Street, and finishes at Gould Academy athletic field.

12 noon—Prizes are awarded for parade floats.

11:30 a.m.-evening —Bethel Rotary Club selling barbequed chicken dinners and sandwiches, Chamber of Commerce selling lobster rolls, and other organizations selling various foods on the Common.

12:15-1 p.m.—Alexander's Follies, juggler, mime, musician, comedian, true family entertainment with audience participation. Sponsored by the Mahoosuc Arts Council.

1 p.m.—Bed Race sponsored by the Bethel Area Health Center.

All afternoon—Arts and crafts booths, food booths, games on the Common; Moses Mason House tours. Mollyockett Day/Bethel Inn Old Time Golf Tournament. Check with the Inn for details.

1-3:30 p.m.—Amateur Lumberjack Competition on the Common. Sponsored by the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce and Bethel Rotary.

2 p.m.—Western Maine Frog Jumping Contest, near Library.

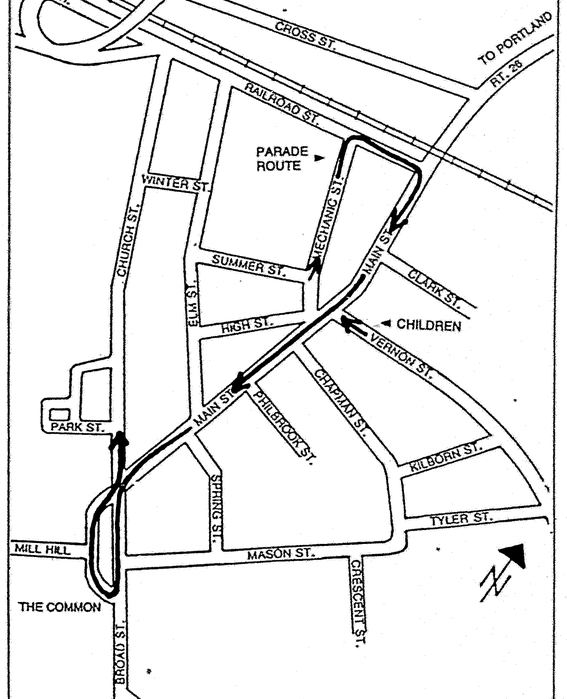
4 p.m.—Mollyockett Mixers Square Dance Exhibition in front of the Bethel Fire Station. Sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

5 p.m.—Old Time Fiddler's Contest. Sponsored by the Bethel Lion's Club.

7:30 p.m. or thereabouts—Ted White's Country Western Band performing on the Common.

9:30 p.m.—Fireworks display seen from the Common area, sponsored by the Bethel Inn, Sunday River Ski Resort and Mt. Abram.

For more information about any of the day's events, call the Chamber of Commerce, at 824-2282.



THE PARADE ROUTE FOR MOLLYOCKETT DAY this Saturday is shown above. Floats and participants will line up on Mechanic Street, where the judging will be held, at 10:30 a.m. The parade will start at 11 a.m. and go up Railroad Street to Main Street, thence to Broad Street and around the Common, down Church Street, finishing at the Gould Academy athletic field. Walkers and children should assemble at Vernon Street to join the parade.

A tombstone should tell more

Poor Princess Mollyockett (or Molly Ockett, or Mollocket, or Moll Locket, or Mari Agat, or Marie Agathe, or Mary Agatha). Not only was she not a princess—there were no princesses among the native Americans—even the spelling and pronunciation of her name is in dispute. As is her date of birth—or even year of birth. Or even the decade of her birth.

What is known is her date of death, Aug. 2, 1816. She was probably about 72. She died in Andover and is buried there under a tombstone that states: Mollockett, baptized Mary Agatha, died in the Christian Faith, Aug. 2, A.D. 1816; The last of the Pequakets.

It would seem more useful to the browser in graveyards if the tombstone identified her as a rather remarkable native American woman who befriended the 18th century settlers who came to this neck of the woods. She aided them by giving them seeds, money, pottery, textiles, and—on one occasion—warning of attack by her fellow Pequakets. She is, of course, most renowned for her healing arts, and she cured any number of settlers, in addition to the infant Hannibal Hamlin—later the vice-president of President Abraham Lincoln.

By all accounts she was a good-natured, helpful, trusting, independent and industrious human being.

She grew up around Fryeburg, spent some time in Massachusetts, returned to Maine, finally settling in the Bethel area. She traveled widely with Indian groups and on her own, spending time in Poland, Andover, Ketchum, and even as far away as Vermont. In Andover she served as midwife at the birth of the first white child born there, in 1790.

She had a fondness for rum, and was not shy about asking for a glass when visiting with her many friends among the settlers.

She was proud and self-assured. When visiting a church service in Poland and denied a seat in the congregation, she went outside and got herself a board, set it down in front of the pulpit and sat right there throughout the service.

These tales, and more, are recounted in a little volume written by Cathy Newell, illustrated by Sue Wight, and issued by the Bethel Historical Society. (It is available at the Moses Mason House for $2.)

The marker on her grave was put there in 1867 and, obviously, the people at that time considered it more important to note how Mari Agat died rather than how she lived. For us, in this day and age, when neighborliness and good works seem to be going out of fashion with each succeeding generation, it might be well for the people of Andover to memorialize their most famous graveyard resident in a more informative manner. She is a good example for later generations to follow, especially if they know more about how she lived.

As an aside, it is worth noting that the choice of the famous healer as the namesake of Bethel's midsummer festival is highly appropriate, since it was the local health center that started the festival.

At this Saturday's celebration, it would be good to remember Mollyockett's practice of being helpful to her neighbors, whether native American or newcomer.

THE TOMBSTONE ON PRINCESS MOLLYOCKETT'S GRAVE in the Andover cemetery was placed there in 1867. It replaced the original marker that had been put up in 1816 when the famous healer died. What the message on the original marker said is now unknown. The present marker notes only her date of death, and that she died a Christian, without telling any of the remarkable story of her life.

A note from the publisher

A decision by the state Supreme Judicial Court last week should reassure citizens that their elected officials are selecting the best possible candidates for public positions.

Heretofore, it has been common practice among town managers, selectmen, school boards and city councils to refuse to divulge the names of applicants for advertised positions. The Supreme Judicial Court, in a unanimous decision, ruled last Wednesday that the names of the applicants, and, in fact, the written applications themselves, are public records and should be open to public inspection.

While town and city officials have normally stonewalled requests for names of applicants, claiming exemption of those applications from the state's public access law, the court decided otherwise. Chief Justice Vincent L. McKusick, who penned the decision, said the public access law reference to exceptions "makes clear that the Legislature intended by that statute to protect from disclosure those materials prepared by the municipality itself as part of its testing and evaluation of job applicants—in essence the municipality's own work product, as opposed to documents sent by applicants to enter themselves in the competitive application process." Thus, any comments jotted down by town officials about the applicants could be held confidential, but the applications themselves could not be held confidential.

The case arose when the city manager of Bangor, in April 1987, refused to release the names of police chief applicants to the Bangor Daily News, citing confidentiality under the public access law. The News took the matter to court, and Superior Court Justice Mortona A. Brody ruled, in October 1987, in favor of the city. Justice Brody said the city's right to protect and encourage applicants outweighed the public's right to know. The newspaper then filed an appeal to the Supreme Judicial Court, which heard arguments in the case in May.

Chief Justice McKusick, in explaining why the supreme court overturned the lower court's decision, said it is clear that the Legislature, by not including job applications among the exempted documents in the public access law, made it clear that such applications were to be considered open for public inspection. Should municipal officials disagree, they should take up the matter with the Legislature to see if that body wishes to add applications to its list of confidential documents.

Bangor city officials said discussions have already started in municipal government circles, and they expect the Legislature will do something to protect the confidentiality of applications.

From where I sit, this would be a disservice to the public. Since it is the local taxpayer who is actually hiring the applicant—and paying his or her salary—certainly the local taxpayer should know who the applicants are.

In the hiring process for Bethel's police chief, despite requests by The Citizen, town officials would release no detailed information about those who were applying for the job, other than the numbers of applications received. As the hiring process bogged down and leading candidates declined the position, local taxpayers were kept in the dark as to who had declined and why.

If town officials expect support from taxpayers, it is in everyone's best interest that the public be kept informed as the process—whether a hiring process or a budget process—unfolds. It does not do to tell taxpayers the result of the process without allowing them to be informed while the process is going on. It is not only inconsiderate of the people who pay the bills, it is—thanks to the Bangor Daily News and the Supreme Judicial Court—illegal.

One of the worst things a military outfit can do is kill unarmed civilians. The U.S. Navy committed this act last week, killing 290 Iranians, Yugoslavs, Afghans and Indians aboard an Iran Air jetliner.

While the confusion that led to the shooting down of the jumbo jet is understandable, it is not forgiveable. No more than the Soviet Air Force decision five years ago to shoot down Korean Air Lines flight 007 was forgiveable. That mistake cost 268 civilian lives.

The two tragedies are similar in many ways—a defenseless civilian plane, a scheduled flight, shot down by armed forces unwilling to wait for additional information.

Following each tragedy, each military bureaucracy also reacted similarly. The Soviets blamed the Koreans and the U.S. for sending the plane into Soviet air space, thus causing the incident. The Pentagon blamed the Iranians for allowing the plane to fly over an area of the Persian Gulf where a skirmish had been taking place between U.S. and Iranian naval forces.

American commentators have mostly taken the position that the captain and crew of the USS Vincennes, mindful of the disaster that befell the USS Stark when it did not shoot at an attacking Iraqi jet fighter-bomber, were paranoid and acted before a similar fate could overtake them.

This explanation overlooks the fact that the two situations were completely different, except that both involved jet planes nearing U.S. warships.

In the case of the Iraqi jet, the Stark's crew was aware that the jet had trained its target acquisition radar onto the ship, indicating a missile attack was possible, if not probable. In the case of the Iran jetliner, there were no hostile radar signals coming from the civilian plane.

In the case of the Stark, the captain and crew disregarded what their electronic equipment was telling them and failed to recognize a clear threat to their ship. In the case of the Vincennes, the captain and crew disregarded the fact that their electronic equipment was offering no evidence of threat, and acted on the basis of their imaginations, and in haste.

Not wanting to appear unpatriotic, American politicians and commentators have mostly accepted the Pentagon's explanation based on half-truth. The Pentagon says radar cannot distinguish between a civilian jet and a military jet, despite the difference in size. This is correct as far as size. But radar, and radar operators, can distinguish between the cruising speed of a jetliner and the attack speed of a fighter-bomber.

The Pentagon also offers the theory that the jetliner was allegedly responding to electronic friend-or-foe interrogation signals with a military response. While this seems unlikely, even if true it would not provide a basis for hostile action by the Vincennes. As noted above, the ship's radar intercept equipment can easily differentiate between the civil aircraft radar employed by a jetliner and the target acquisition radar employed by an attacking fighter-bomber. This differentiation in radar signals would be the strongest evidence of the identity of the approaching aircraft—and of its intentions. The captain and crew of the Vincennes should have been able to draw correct conclusions from the information the ship's radar intercept equipment offered.

No doubt, like the captain of the Stark, the captain of the Vincennes will be disciplined. But that will not bring back the 290 civilians killed.

What both incidents point out is that some naval units are not properly trained or equipped to be doing the sort of duty they are doing in the Persian Gulf.

Freedom of navigation, both at sea and through the air, is important for the nations of the world. Therefore it's ironic that while the Reagan Administration says the U.S. Navy is in the Gulf to defend the right of freedom of navigation, in actuality—through downing an airliner—the U.S. Navy is impeding the freedom of navigation.

It's sad to note that the only American politician who has had the courage to say this is Jesse Jackson.

Whew! How hot was it last week? Hotter than most people desired, even those who had complained about the cold during the winter.

Roger Hanscom said one of the thermometers at the Bethel House registered 120° in the sun. At the Ethel Bisbee School playground, where 30 youngsters were enjoying the Bethel Recreation Board's summer playground program, the thermometer read 100° in the sun. (The children were wisely herded into the cool basement classroom.) Ruel Swain stopped haying. Despite the old adage that a farmer should make hay while the sun shines, he said it was just too hot.

Residents near Gould Academy suffered more than most on the hot, humid Friday night. An errant driver knocked over a power pole on Church Street before midnight (as well as a fire hydrant), which knocked out all fans and air conditioners until the next morning.

Meanwhile, wiseacres were joking that the Bethel road crew had to get out the sanding truck to sand down Main Street due to a brief (and unseen) snowstorm. The truth of the matter was that the sand was needed to cover some oil that had spilled from a truck.

The heat wave finally broke earlier this week. Whew!

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Thanks to the folks in Bethel and at CMMC.

On March 8 of this year a student from the College of William and Mary, in Virginia, was seriously injured with a closed head trauma while skiing at Sunday River. He was very quickly attended to by the Sunday River Ski Patrol, who called Keegan's Ambulance Service when they determined that the student could not be revived.

The rescue squad put the young man on life support and took him to Rumford Hospital. Emergency personnel at Rumford, realizing the patient needed the service of neurosurgeons and other specialists, sent him to Central Maine Medical Center in Lewiston, again with Keegan's Ambulance Service. At CMMC, neurosurgeons as well as other doctors and nurses attended him in intensive care for seven days and nights until he came out of his coma. He was subsequently sent to CMMC's rehabilitation unit where specially trained staff began to teach him to walk and talk again.

At the present time the young man is in outpatient therapy in Virginia, auditing a college class and spending this week in the mountains of West Virginia helping disadvantaged folks winterize their homes. Needless to say he is very thankful for the expert care he received after his fall on the ski slopes.

As his parents, we are especially grateful for the skill of the rescue and medical teams and for the help of Sunday River's Jay Gamble, who was on hand for us from the moment we arrived at CMMC to the time we left Maine. We would also like to express our thanks to Leslie Otten and Sunday River for helping us with our expenses while we were in Lewiston.

The people of Maine can be proud to live in a caring community where the skill and efficiency of their trained personnel are saving lives in critical situations.

Sen. Mitchell says....

Scientific evidence suggests that the earth is becoming warmer at an accelerating rate. The first five months of this year have been warmer than any comparable period since measurements began 130 years ago. The four warmest years on record have all occurred in this decade.

Many scientists attribute these rising global temperatures to pollutants in the atmosphere trapping infrared radiation from the sun. This is commonly known as the "greenhouse effect."

At a recent Senate hearing Dr. James E. Hansen of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration told the committee he was 99 percent certain that the warming trend is not a natural variation but is caused by a buildup of carbon dioxide and other artificial gases in the atmosphere. Most of these pollutants are released into the atmosphere by the burning of fossil fuels, such as coal and oil.

Scientists predict that if the buildup of gases continues at the current pace, the effect is likely to be a warming of three to nine degrees Fahrenheit from the year 2025 to 2050. The rise in temperature is not expected to be uniform around the globe. It is anticipated that warming will be greater in the higher latitudes—as much as 20 degrees higher—and lower at the equator.

The consequences of this global warming trend could be dire. The rise in global temperatures is predicted to cause a thermal expansion of the oceans and to melt glaciers and polar icecaps, thus causing sea levels to rise by one to four feet by the middle of the next century. A state such as Maine, with a long coastline, could face disaster if there is a significant rise in the sea level. At the same time, heat would cause inland waters to evaporate more rapidly, lowering the level of lakes.

While scientists generally agree that the chief cause of the current drought in the midwest and south is natural climate variability, Dr. Syukuro Manabe of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration told a Senate panel that the global warming trend is probably aggravating the current dry condition.

Dr. Manabe testified that several factors, including an earlier snowmelt each year because of higher temperatures and a rain belt that moves farther north in the summer, mean that "it is likely that severe mid-continental summer dryness will occur more frequently with increasing atmospheric temperature."

World leaders have begun to call for international cooperation to protect the atmosphere. At a recent conference in Toronto, Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and Prime Minister Gro Harlem Brundtland of Norway called for a binding international agreement to address a range of assaults on the atmosphere, including global warming, damage to the protective ozone layer and acid rain.

Last year more than 40 nations agreed to act to protect the ozone layer by limiting the use of chlorofluorocarbons (CFC's), a group of industrial chemicals that destroy the ozone layer. But a treaty to protect the atmosphere from a broad range of problems caused by the burning of fossil fuels would require much broader adjustments, including reducing dependence on oil and coal.

While the problems caused by inadequately controlled sources of air pollution may seem insurmountable, we have developed effective control mechanisms and can develop new ways to control these emissions.

As chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Environmental Protection, I will continue to press for Senate consideration of legislation to amend the Clean Air Act in this session of Congress. The bill calls for significant reduction of major pollutants that cause acid rain and contribute to the greenhouse effect.

While the costs of measures to control pollution are significant, the costs to our environment and the subsequent risks to our health are too great to delay action.

Superintendent's Newsletter

Dewaine B. Craig

With the close of the school year we are often very busy with reports for the state and other paperwork which needs to be completed and we do not take the time to say "thank-you" to the many community members who helped make the past year a success. During the past few years the number of parent volunteers in each of the district's elementary schools has grown. These volunteers work within the schools to assist the teachers and improve the educational opportunities for our students. The volunteers work in the areas of Math, Reading, Writing, to name just a few. I wish to extend a large and sincere "thank-you" for a job well done to all of our volunteers.

A special "thank-you" to Will and Marguerite Graham for their work in helping the district improve the writing skills of our elementary students. With the assistance of local sponsors, the students have seen their written works appear in The Bethel Citizen on a regular basis. At the conclusion of each of the past two years, the written works of the elementary students have been compiled into a spiral-bound book, printed by Mr. David Tripp and the graphic arts students at Telstar, and each student has received a copy of the book.

I also wish to thank The Bethel Citizen for the space they have provided for local school news. We have appreciated the efforts of Mrs. Boelsma in attending school activities for photos. We are thankful for the space The Citizen has provided for our news and are encouraged that the coverage will grow in the future.

In the last two issues of The Citizen there have been comments regarding an article written by Alexandria (Alex) Gillies, a Grade 4 student at Crescent Park School this past year. A lot has been said about the context of the article, but I believe a critical point has been missed: an elementary student has taken on an adult responsibility. I wish to take this opportunity to thank Miss Gillies for taking on the responsibility of writing a weekly column. She has met deadlines and completed articles on Crescent Park School activities on a weekly basis. Alex completed an "adult" task very well. Our thanks to her for a job well done.

These columns will start up again in late-August. The first few articles will profile new faculty members, to update everyone on the renovations which took place during the summer, and to report on the opening of the 1988-89 school year.

As you enjoy the summer, please take a book along with you. Adults and children alike should use their leisure time this summer to do some reading. As you vacation and visit new areas, learn about the heritage of this country. Enjoy your summer.

From Augusta

School's out, but...

The books may be put away for another summer, but the topic of education and how to afford it is likely to remain as hot as any August barbecue. In this column, I'll review the Legislature's latest efforts to address local education funding, as well as some new opportunities for students pursuing higher education.

In an earlier column I described steps taken by the Legislature to reduce increases in the local property tax by increasing state education funding. The major provision of this new legislation will pump $12 million from the state to local school administrative districts by establishing a more accurate method to measure the actual operating cost of each district. A "hold harmless" provision was approved that guarantees all school districts at least 90 percent of the state funding they received the year before. This provision is important for districts experiencing dramatic increases in property values and are, therefore, qualifying for less state education funding.

Here are some additional legislative changes that may be of interest to both parents and students:

A Victory for School Construction: Our efforts to achieve excellence in education in Maine have greatly increased the demand for new school facilities. Since the annual debt limit for school districts was set in 1977, the cost of construction has increased by more than 250 percent, the cost of borrowing has increased at least 15 percent and the number of requests for school construction has more than tripled. This legislation enables the State Board of Education to more adequately meet the local demand for school construction by raising the annual debt service limit.

Maine Educational Loan Authority Established: The Maine Educational Loan Authority may accomplish for education what the Finance Authority of Maine has accomplished for hundreds of Maine businesses. By providing low interest loans to students or parents of students attending Maine colleges and universities who are in need of financial assistance, the Educational Loan Authority will increase the number of higher education opportunities available to Maine people. Approved as an emergency measure, this legislation allows the Maine Educational Loan Authority to begin operation for the 1988-89 school year.

$31.8 Million University Bond Issue Up to Voters: In November, Maine voters will be asked if they favor a $31.8 million bond issue for the construction and upgrading of libraries, classrooms, laboratories and other educational facilities at all campuses of the University of Maine system.

Blaine House Scholarship Program Expanded: In 1984, Governor Brennan and the Maine Legislature created the Blaine House Scholarship Program to recognize and reward Maine students and teachers for academic excellence. Presently, the program awards financial assistance to high school graduates who are preparing for post-secondary education and to teachers pursuing advanced degrees or continued study. This year, the program was expanded to award financial assistance to students already enrolled in a post-secondary institution.

REUNION POSTPONED

The 10th reunion of the Telstar Regional High School Class of 1978, scheduled for this weekend, has been postponed until fall. The organizers said too many classmates were going to be away.

CORRECTION

There were a couple of strange spellings in last week's Citizen—aside from whatever typographical errors got passed the editing and proofreading processes.

In the story on the Upson Playhouse Antiques, the word for the arch should have been proscenium arch, which is the arch above a stage.

In the story about William Bingham II's last visit to Gould Academy, a line was dropped from the text, resulting in a word spelled "stagesium." The full sentence should have read: "As part of the 1954 commencement exercises a talented Bethel student had painted a stage-size backdrop of the Hanscom Hall portico to adorn the Bingham Gymnasium commencement site." The missing text began with -size and ended with Gymna, resulting in the strange word "stagesium."

School Board

waine Craig informed the board that he had withdrawn the application for the second year of the Mainely Orff grant. The superintendent pointed to the lack of a qualified music therapist and of an elementary music teacher as the reason for pulling the paperwork.

The board voted to approve another grant proposal—this for the Local Aspirations Compact Proposal. Six pilot sites in the state will be chosen for this program, which seeks to raise student expectations and aspirations by increasing community involvement, especially the involvement of the business community, in the school system.

If SAD #44 is selected, the district will receive $2,300 to be used for training adviser teams to work with students. No district matching funds will be required.

According to Cathy Newell, author of the proposal, the program would "foster community involvement with the Telstar Middle School and High School that has been needed for a long time."

Directors absent from Monday night's meeting were: Jeri Brooks and Richard Crandall, of Bethel; John Foster, of Andover; and Gail Sysko, of Newry.

Sen. Mitchell says...

Scientific evidence suggests that the earth is becoming warmer at an accelerating rate. The first five months of this year have been warmer than any comparable period since measurements began 130 years ago. The four warmest years on record have all occurred in this decade.

Many scientists attribute these rising global temperatures to pollutants in the atmosphere trapping infrared radiation from the sun. This is commonly known as the "greenhouse effect."

At a recent Senate hearing Dr. James E. Hansen of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration told the committee he was 99 percent certain that the warming trend is not a natural variation but is caused by a buildup of carbon dioxide and other artificial gases in the atmosphere. Most of these pollutants are released into the atmosphere by the burning of fossil fuels, such as coal and oil.

Scientists predict that if the buildup of gases continues at the current pace, the effect is likely to be a warming of three to nine degrees Fahrenheit from the year 2025 to 2050. The rise in temperature is not expected to be uniform around the globe. It is anticipated that warming will be greater in the higher latitudes—as much as 20 degrees higher—and lower at the equator.

The consequences of this global warming trend could be dire. The rise in global temperatures is predicted to cause a thermal expansion of the oceans and to melt glaciers and polar icecaps, thus causing sea levels to rise by one to four feet by the middle of the next century. A state such as Maine, with a long coastline, could face disaster if there is a significant rise in the sea level. At the same time, heat would cause inland waters to evaporate more rapidly, lowering the level of lakes.

While scientists generally agree that the chief cause of the current drought in the midwest and south is natural climate variability, Dr. Syukuro Manabe of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration told a Senate panel that the global warming trend is probably aggravating the current dry condition.

Dr. Manabe testified that several factors, including an earlier snowmelt each year because of higher temperatures and a rain belt that moves farther north in the summer, mean that it is likely that severe mid-continental summer dryness will occur more frequently with increasing atmospheric temperature."

World leaders have begun to call for international cooperation to protect the atmosphere. At a recent conference in Toronto, Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and Prime Minister Gro Harlem Brundtland of Norway called for a binding international agreement to address a range of assaults on the atmosphere, including global warming, damage to the protective ozone layer and acid rain.

Last year more than 40 nations agreed to act to protect the ozone layer by limiting the use of chlorofluorocarbons (CFC's), a group of industrial chemicals that destroy the ozone layer. But a treaty to protect the atmosphere from a broad range of problems caused by the burning of fossil fuels would require much broader adjustments, including reducing dependence on oil and coal.

While the problems caused by inadequately controlled sources of air pollution may seem insurmountable, we have developed effective control mechanisms and can develop new ways to control these emissions.

As chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Environmental Protection, I will continue to press for Senate consideration of legislation to amend the Clean Air Act in this session of Congress. The bill calls for significant reduction of major pollutants that cause acid rain and contribute to the greenhouse effect.

While the costs of measures to control pollution are significant, the costs to our environment and the subsequent risks to our health are too great to delay action.

Superintendent's Newsletter

Dewaine B. Craig

With the close of the school year we are often very busy with reports for the state and other paperwork which needs to be completed and we do not take the time to say "thank-you" to the many community members who helped make the past year a success. During the past few years the number of parent volunteers in each of the district's elementary schools has grown. These volunteers work within the schools to assist the teachers and improve the educational opportunities for our students. The volunteers work in the areas of Math, Reading, Writing, to name just a few. I wish to extend a large and sincere "thank-you" for a job well done to all of our volunteers.

A special "thank-you" to Will and Marguerite Graham for their work in helping the district improve the writing skills of our elementary students. With the assistance of local sponsors, the students have seen their written works appear in The Bethel Citizen on a regular basis. At the conclusion of each of the past two years, the written works of the elementary students have been compiled into a spiral-bound book, printed by Mr. David Tripp and the graphic arts students at Telstar, and each student has received a copy of the book.

I also wish to thank The Bethel Citizen for the space they have provided for local school news. We have appreciated the efforts of Mrs. Boelsma in attending school activities for photos. We are thankful for the space The Citizen has provided for our news and are encouraged that the coverage will grow in the future.

In the last two issues of The Citizen there have been comments regarding an article written by Alexandria (Alex) Gillies, a Grade 4 student at Crescent Park School this past year. A lot has been said about the context of the article, but I believe a critical point has been missed: an elementary student has taken on an adult responsibility. I wish to take this opportunity to thank Miss Gillies for taking on the responsibility of writing a weekly column. She has met deadlines and completed articles on Crescent Park School activities on a weekly basis. Alex completed an "adult" task very well. Our thanks to her for a job well done.

JUNKYARD DOGS MUFFIN AND MANDY guard more than 1,000 parts cars in the yard of Gaudreau's Repairs. Jeff Gaudreau recently completed clearing an adjacent 10-acre yard that will hold an additional 1,500 cars and trucks. Massachusetts environmental officials recently closed two auto shredding plants in that state. The shredders were the ultimate disposal point for most stripped auto carcasses from Maine, causing considerable concern among junk yard owners with large inventories of older cars. Most of the vehicles in Gaudreau's lot are relatively late models, however, with lots of parts life left, so Jeff does not expect to be seriously affected by the closing.

Repair shop now offers used cars and auto parts

Gaudreau's Repairs, one of the fastest-growing small businesses in the Bethel area, marks its 10th anniversary this year.

Established in 1978, the auto repair shop on Route 26 south of town now handles all types of mechanical repairs, offers specialty body work and sells used cars, trucks and parts.

Owner Jeff Gaudreau started selling cars on a regular basis six years ago, and he estimates that he now sells approximately 150 used cars a year. But service is still the shop's main line of business.

The shop works on all domestic and foreign makes, but specializes in four-wheel drive vehicles and Hondas.

Not all of the shop's customers come in under their own power. Gaudreau's towing fleet has grown from one truck in 1978 to five today and regularly responds to calls from as far away as Rumford and West Paris.

Gaudreau's has also become one of the largest area suppliers of used auto parts. Behind the shop, screened by trees from the view of anyone on Route 26, is a collection of more than 1,000 parts cars. And Jeff recently completed clearing a second, 10-acre lot that will accommodate an additional 1,500 cars.

Gaudreau's now has a full-time staff of three: Jeff, his father Buster Gaudreau, and Bucky Buckman.

The parts cars out back are protected by Jeff's two junkyard dogs, who are every bit as ferocious as their names—Muffin and Mandy—suggest.

Mrs. Ann Proctor and Ivan Jr. have been enjoying a vacation at their trailer, in Stratton, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Hyam have entertained company this past weekend. Ralph and Barbara Dow, of Bristol, N.H., and Lady Lake, Fla., spent from Thursday to Sunday with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bessette, Emily, Marc and Timothy, of Fairfax, Vt., have been spending the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vance Bacon. On Sunday they enjoyed a cookout at the John Betts', in Greenwood, and swimming at the Inman camp. On Monday they all joined a family get-together in Oxford at the cottage of Duane and Mary Nichols. Ken Bacon, Christy Bartlett and Donnie also attended the activities.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Erlon Whitman upon his death.

The West Paris Historical Society will meet Monday, July 18, at the cottage of Beverly Glines, on North Pond. A picnic/cookout will precede the meeting.

The Parisians will be performing in the park in South Paris on Wednesday evening, July 20

The Universalist Church will be having a sale of crafts in conjunction with the Tri-Town Rescue flea market at Trap Corner on Saturday, July 16, starting at 9 a.m.

AN ICY PLACE ON A HOT DAY—Don Lawrence, of Woodstock, left, and Ambrose Brooks, of Greenwood, examine a chunk of ice in the Greenwood Ice Caves. With the recent spell of hot weather, the few remaining pockets of ice in the caves are melting fast. The caves are still delightfully cool, however, and a welcome relief after the long, hot climb to the top of Uncle Tom Mountain.

Fourth of July has gone by and the month is well on its way. All kinds of weather to make everyone happy, I hope. Whatever you like, just wait a little and you will have it. Rather warm right now but was rather cool just recently, so shouldn't complain, I suppose.

Has anyone noticed how much the trees have grown this summer? In walking up the road I have noticed the evergreen trees especially as they sure show the growth that has taken place. It is amazing how fast they grow, and the lighter color shows how much. Harder to see the difference in the hardwood trees but the small ones show growth a lot as well as the evergreen trees do. It is interesting to watch such things take place, and where I try to walk every day that I can, I have seen the changes take place this summer.

Russell's rose bushes are growing great guns, also. They are blooming and are beautiful to see. At Lawrence's home there is an odd colored rose bush, or perhaps I should say colors, as the blossom isn't just one color. It is so different and so pretty. It has almost a peach color as well as looking orange and pink. An odd combination of colors but very different and pretty. Lots of buds so will be pretty for awhile, I hope. The yellow rose beside it is lovely too.

Russell's pansies are blossoming good but are all the same color though they were supposed to be mixed. Very large blossoms and pretty. The lillies are blossoming good at this time and other flowers are coming along, so it is a pretty time of the year to see the different flowers blooming in yards around the countryside as one rides along or takes a walk.

Last Friday morning Russell and Peggy headed out for Charlotte, Vt. Russell was exchanging a mower he had bought and that is where the company is located. They left here at 6:10 a.m. for a day on the road. Didn't know just how long it would take to get there and back again but took lunch with them so as not to have to take time to go to a restaurant. That always takes longer. They got home just a little after 5 p.m. and had traveled something like 366 miles or so, up and back. A good day's ride for sure.

I was expecting Michael, Wynona and girls home sometime that day and didn't know when, and having had a bad week decided I would stay home as I needed to get up and exercise once in a while instead of just sitting. Michael and Wynona and girls didn't get home here until about 6, or a little after, and were dog-tired. They cleaned out the motor home they had rented, getting it ready to return in the morning. The girls slept here in their bunkbeds and Wynona and Mike borrowed a bed from Peggy to sleep in that night. They said it felt good to be in a real bed again but had had a good time despite the rainy weather and everything else. Didn't get where they had wanted to go but saw a lot just the same. Went out around Lake Placid, N.Y. and visited the olympic sites there as well as other things.

They returned the motor home to Call of the Wild on Saturday. When they got back here to get the girls and go home, they found me shelling peas and Russell picking more so Nome and girls helped shell and Mike went out and helped Russell pick. The help was very much appreciated. We put up 18 pints of peas as well as giving Nome enough for a sample and having some for ourselves. Very good and so tasty as the first ones always are each and every year. Since then we have put up seven more pints so they will help next winter. In the evening Peggy went to West Paris to the dance as she couldn't find anyone to go to Greene. Russell was having trouble with his leg and so was I, so stayed home.

Sunday was a beautiful day and we made the most of it. Did some washing and later in the forenoon we put on some glad rags and went to Auburn to have a cookout with Peggy's daughter and husband, Myrna and Bernard White. We had a lovely time, enjoying the company and the food as well. Myrna's daughter, Lorna, came to spend the day from the Augusta area and it was good to see her again as it has been a long time since we had seen her. Myrna and Whitey had a lovely lunch or dinner for us, and later in the afternoon we went outside and played ring toss. They used to play out at the lake when they had the cottage but I had never played the game with them. It is a lot like yard darts but the things you throw don't have any sharp things on them but bounce when they land. A game of skill, but after a little I got the range and did better throwing them. It was fun for all.

Monday, being the Fourth of July, Nome had called to see if we would like to go on a picnic, but we decided we would like to have a cookout right here at home. We could use Lawrence's gas grill, so did. Nome and Mike had gone and played golf in the forenoon and the girls had stayed here with me. We had a bountiful lunch as usual and played ring toss here. The girls could play with that so we didn't use the yard dart game at all. It was a very pleasant Fourth of July and no mixing up in traffic. Nome said it wasn't bad what traveling they did to get here so all was well.

Tuesday was my day for going to North Bridgton and as Peggy is taking a course on computers, Hilda drove me to the doctor's office. Legs still bother after my bad spell with them or I would have tried to drive myself. When I got home, Russell was picking the peas again so I started shelling them, and that was the day we put up seven pints. Hope to have more when the peas are ready out back.

Russell had mowed till he ran out of gas so had Peggy take the truck when she went to school and get more gas for him. He did a lot of mowing down below the trailer home in the afternoon and evening so he got it finished. Looks good. A hard job well done.

Peggy and Russell attended the funeral of Erlon Whitman, Wednesday afternoon. I didn't go because of my allergy to flowers. Keeps me home when I wish it did not. Mary Lovejoy took some of the neighbors and friends to attend Mr. Whitman's funeral.

Sandra Poland and sister, Charlotte, were around on Monday evening collecting for flowers for the funeral as Mr. Whitman was a near neighbor.

David Small of Kennebunk spent the weekend with the Lovejoys.

Jennifer Haverinen spent a night recently with the girls at Lovejoys.

Visitors last Saturday of the Jimmy Kimballs were her niece, Ronna Morang, from Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Bickford, of Monmouth. Sunday dinner guests were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Libby and little son Robert, of So. Portland, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Burgess, of Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Heath and boys, from So. Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bancroft were in Bedford, Mass., last weekend to attend the wedding of Jill Mason and Michael Levine. Several family members from this area also attended.

Mrs. Lillian Kimball, of So. Paris, is a patient at Stephens Memorial Hospital, in Norway.

Mrs. Christine Kimball was in Norway Wednesday for her doctor's appointment.

Mr. and Mrs. Norton Cross were callers at Jimmy & Christine's in the evening.

Jimmy Kimball was mowing Thursday, along the brook through the meadow, when the bank caved in and the tractor tipped over, pinning him in the brook with just his head out of the water. His calls for help were heard by neighbors who helped him out. He suffered multiple bruises, but no broken bones.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Benson, from Ozark, Ala., arrived Friday morning to visit her sister, Mrs. Louise Newton. Saturday they will all go to Brownfield to attend a softball game between mothers and daughters. Another sister, Mrs. Lillian Chapman, and daughter, will be playing. The visit will be a complete surprise.

I spent part of the holiday weekend with Ethel and family, in Otisfield. Herb Adams, of Hanover, was a caller here, Thursday evening.

decided I would stay home as I needed to get up and exercise once in a while instead of just sitting. Michael and Wynona and girls didn't get home here until about 6, or a little after, and were dog-tired. They cleaned out the motor home they had rented, getting it ready to return in the morning. The girls slept here in their bunkbeds and Wynona and Mike borrowed a bed from Peggy to sleep in that night. They said it felt good to be in a real bed again but had had a good time despite the rainy weather and everything else. Didn't get where they had wanted to go but saw a lot just the same. Went out around Lake Placid, N.Y. and visited the olympic sites there as well as other things.

They returned the motor home to Call of the Wild on Saturday. When they got back here to get the girls and go home, they found me shelling peas and Russell picking more so Nonie and girls helped shell and Mike went out and helped Russell pick. The help was very much appreciated. We put up 18 pints of peas as well as giving Nonie enough for a sample and having some for ourselves. Very good and so tasty as the first ones always are each and every year. Since then we have put up seven more pints so they will help next winter. In the evening Peggy went to West Paris to the dance as she couldn't find anyone to go to Greene. Russell was having trouble with his leg and so was I, so stayed home.

Sunday was a beautiful day and we made the most of it. Did some washing and later in the forenoon we put on some glad rags and went to Auburn to have a cookout with Peggy's daughter and husband, Myrna and Bernard White. We had a lovely time, enjoying the company and the food as well. Myrna's daughter, Lorna, came to spend the day from the Augusta area and it was good to see her again as it has been a long time since we had seen her. Myrna and Whitey had a lovely lunch or dinner for us, and later in the afternoon we went outside and played ring toss. They used to play out at the lake when they had the cottage but I had never played the game with them.

It is a lot like yard darts but the thin you throw don't have any sharp things them but bounce when they land. A ga of skill, but after a little I got the ran and did better throwing them. It was f for all.

Monday, being the Fourth of Ju
Nonie had called to see if we would li to go on a picnic, but we decided would like to have a cookout right he at home. We could use Lawrence's g grill, so did. Nonie and Mike had go and played golf in the forenoon and th girls had stayed here with me. We ha a bountiful lunch as usual and playe ring toss here. The girls could play wi that so we didn't use the yard dart gam
at all. It was a very pleasant Fourth July and no mixing up in traffic. Noni said it wasn't bad what traveling they di to get here so all was well.

Tuesday was my day for going to Nort
Bridgton and as Peggy is taking a cours on computers, Hilda drove me to the doc tor's office. Legs still bother after my ba spell with them or I would have tried t drive myself. When I got home, Russel was picking the peas again so I started shelling them, and that was the day w put up seven pints. Hope to have mor when the peas are ready out back.

Russell had mowed till he ran out o gas so had Peggy take the truck when sh went to school and get more gas for him
He did a lot of mowing down below the trailer home in the afternoon and evening so he got it finished. Looks good. A hard job well done.

Peggy and Russell attended the funeral of Erlon Whitman, Wednesday afternoon. I didn't go because of my allergy to flowers. Keeps me home when I wish it did not. Mary Lovejoy took some of the neighbors and friends to attend Mr. Whitman's funeral.

Sandra Poland and sister, Charlotte, were around on Monday evening collecting for flowers for the funeral as Mr. Whitman was a near neighbor.

David Small of Kennebunk spent the weekend with the Lovejoys.

Jennifer Haverinen spent a night recently with the girls at Lovejoys.

By OLIVE R. DAVIS

This week is promised to be a hot one. The Fourth was truly hot and Tuesday has started out the same.

We wish to extend our sympathy for the passing of Earlon Whitman. He was a faithful member of West Paris Grange and will be sadly missed.

Sunday afternoon I went to Bridgton to visit my sister, Lillian Harmon, and her families who were there. I thought the traffic would be lighter that way, but I met, from Norway Lake to North Bridgton, 180, or so, cars going to Norway; six motorcycles and two bicycles were in the group.

Esther Davis and daughter, Patricia Tibbetts, were in the Livermore area visiting their relatives Sunday, after attending church at West Sumner.

Mr. and Mrs. Lettie Brooks and I attended our Grange—Franklin—Monday night. We also attended Paris Grange on Thursday night where Lettie acted as assistant steward in their first and second degree conferred at that time.

Buster Poland held a sale this weekend. I understand he has a car for sale also, if one needs a good one (second-handed).

My sister, Lillian Harmon, hurt her leg on the shin, peeling the skin up about an inch wide. It has to be dressed everyday and is an ugly looking wound. It seems to be better at this writing.

Jim Miclon has spent the last two weekends at the rock and roll concerts at Oxford Plains. This made a lot of traffic in Maine.

I am having the hay mowed shortly. Anyone who wants it can have it. First come, first served.

Mary Fleming, Myrtle Thurlow and Edith Herrick are all in Ledgeview Nursing Home. I am sure they would enjoy company. Let's go in and see them.

Jim Mason attended a strawberry festival on Paris Hill.

Mrs. Marta Clements is working on the school unit, making plans on next year's courses.

From the Bethel Area

Chamber of Commerce

Executive Director Robin Zinchuk reports as follows:

We are busy getting ready for Mollyockett Day. The chamber's participation in the day is at an all-time high. We have organized the road race—the Mollyockett Day Classic—a 1-mile fun run for 14 years and younger and a 5-mile race for women and men. Registration is from 7:45 to 8:15 a.m. on Saturday on The Bethel Inn's front lawn. Prizes are being donated by area merchants and T-shirts will go to the first 100 registrants.

Race times are 8:30 a.m. for the 1-mile ($3.50 registration fee) and 9 a.m. for the 5-mile ($7 registration fee). Seltzer & Rydholm (Pepsi) is the sponsor.

We are also selling T-shirts and lobster rolls on the Common. The lobster will be great this year, as we have obtained a superior mix for the sandwiches. Come and try one.

We also organized the woodsmen's contest this year, with $525 in prize money available. Local woodsmen are encouraged to sign up. The first 15 will be able to compete. Applications for the woodsmen's contest and road race are available in our new office, the former Gamm II building, corner of Main and Cross streets, across from the bus garage.

Many thanks to Doug Zinchuk, who built us a beautiful new information sign, which has been erected in the Snow Falls rest area, on Rt. 26. Thanks also to Western Maine Supply for donating some of the materials.

Planning is well underway for participation in the Springfield Expo (Big E) this year. Bill Riley is chairing the committee and is actively pursuing other western Maine chamber participation in order to regionalize our booth.

Our board of directors will meet this Thursday at 7:30 a.m. at the Casco Bank. All are welcome.

Noted author leads off series of NTL seminars

Voluntarism in the Community; Involving the Uninvolved will be the topic of a presentation by Eva Schindler-Rainman, sponsored by the Bethel/NTL Liaison Committee, on Sunday evening, July 17, 7-9 p.m., at the Bethel Inn Conference Center.

This is the first in a series of four Sunday Seminars featuring staff members from National Training Labs, sponsored by the Liaison Committee. There is no charge for these seminars.

Eva Schindler-Rainman is an internationally known expert on the subject of voluntarism, and has been coming to Bethel as an NTL staff member for many years. She was the featured presenter at the Voluntarism Conference, sponsored by the Liaison Committee in 1986, the Blaine House Conference on Voluntarism in 1987, and was the facilitator for the Citizens Community Conference held in Bethel last October.

She has taught at major universities in the U.S. and Canada, and is the author of eight books, including "Building the Collaborative Community," "Taking Your Meetings Out of the Doldrums," and "The Creative Volunteer Community." Although a resident of Los Angeles, Dr. Schindler-Rainman regards Bethel as her second home.

Later Sunday Seminars will feature Edith Seashore on Managing Differences, on July 24; Norma Jean Anderson on NTL and the Third World, on July 31; and Charles Seashore on Feedback, on Aug. 14.

OPEN HOUSE AT THE PHONE MUSEUM—Despite the sweltering weather Saturday, approximately 75 people turned out for the Down East Telephone Pioneers' annual open house at the Bryant Pond Telephone Museum. Visitors enjoyed refreshments, music and had the chance to place calls on the crank phones. Proceeds from the day benefit St. Jude's Children's Hospital research and the Ronald McDonald House.

PYTHIAN SISTERS MEET

Convention #3 of the Pythian Sisters was held at Strong recently and attended by several members of the area: Violet Doughty, P.G.C. of Norway; Rose Dyer of Bethel; Evelyn Bean, P.G.C.; Kathleen McAllister of Bryant Pond; Phyllis Millett, Gr. Sr.; Arlene Merrill; Shirley Route and Elouse Vail of East Stoneham; Esther Brack; Martha Harrington; Grace Horne, Gr. Sr.; June Nesbit; Edith Meisner of Mexico.

A business meeting was held in the morning, followed by noon dinner. Degree work was conducted in the afternoon.

150 more arrive for NTL

About 150 NTL participants and staff arrived in Bethel last weekend for six new programs that started on Sunday and Monday. They joined another group already here, now completing the second week of their own workshop. Crescent Park School is providing meeting spaces for three of these new programs, and the others are using the Bethel Inn Conference Center and NTL's own facilities.

At the orientation session for all new programs, Les Otten welcomed the NTL newcomers on behalf of the town and the NTL/Bethel Liaison Committee. Almost 100 of the visitors are either living in local inns, motels, or bed-and-breakfast homes, or renting houses in the Bethel area.

Starting on Tuesday of this week, the lobby area of the Bethel Inn Conference Center was inaugurated as the new location for NTL's 7:30 a.m. Sunrise Seminars. With the enlarged staff group that arrived over the weekend, the changing topics have included a videotape entitled "Discovering the Future" on Tuesday morning, and a discussion on Wednesday with Harold Bridger on "Facilitating Social Re-Connections in an Increasingly Turbulent and Narcissistic World." On Thursday, July 14, a presentation will be made by Jack and Alice (a.k.a. Michael Merrill) on "We Are Who They Were (Our Ancestors): Reflections on the Power of Archetypal (Universal) Experience in Everyday Life." On Friday, Luis Morales-Saenz will discuss the question: "To Help or Not." There will be no Saturday Sunrise Seminar this week.

Besides the morning seminars, open as always to members of the Bethel community, there will be one open Special Session on Thursday, July 14, on the topic: "NTL's Commitment to a Multicultural Organization." This will also be held in the lobby of the Bethel Inn Conference Center as a fishbowl activity, with members of the NTL staff taking part in the discussion, and others observing from the outside.

The topics for each week's similar activities are regularly posted in a number of locations around Bethel, and these may also be learned by phoning the NTL office in Bethel, 824-2151. All interested persons are invited to attend.

THE BOILER ROOM changed hands recently. New owners Gary and Sandra Savage (left) are shown accepting the keys from former owners Louise and Joe Robiller. The Savages will open the refurbished restaurant this Friday, July 15. The menu will feature steaks and seafood. Ross Joly Realty was the broker involved in the sale, which was by auction.

Newry

By AMY HANSCOM

Karlene Bachelder, Gilberte Seeley, Betsy Clark, Louise Tetley, Beatrice Lowell, Thelma Lowery, Sylvia Wight and Gretchen Wight were in Rumford bowling, June 28. Rena Powers was a guest. There was a close race for high scorer in the triple, with Sylvia Wight high, Betsy one point behind Sylvia and Karlene one point behind Betsy. Sylvia Wight and Betsy Clark tied for single with 111 points each. After bowling, the ladies had lunch and went shopping.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Wight, Diana and Sarah of Fairfield, Mr. and Mrs. William Brook and daughters, of Augusta, Mr. and Mrs. Randy Brook, Seneca and Amber and Mrs. Susan Bowie, Jennifer and Christopher, of Newry, joined Mr. and Mrs. Owen Wight for a cookout on the "Bean Hill", July 4.

Stephen Wight and family, of Old Town, and David Wight and family, of Milford, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Wight over the holiday weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Frankie Lamastro, Scituate, R.I., and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond De Lorme, Raymond Jr. and Brian, Providence, R.I., were weekend guests of Mary Tripp.

Seventy-one attended the annual Community Picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Wight, July 3. People attended from New Jersey, Littleton, N.H., Old Town, Milford, Portland, Bethel, New Gloucester, Shapleigh, North Berwick, North Waterford, Byron, Rumford and Newry.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Turgurco, of Portland, Lloyd Sykes, of Portland, Mr. and Mrs. John Nolan, of Mitchen, N.J. and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Roberts, children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren of New Gloucester spent the holiday weekend at their camp.

Mr. and Mrs. Amil Thody, of Moodus, Conn., were guests of Louise Learned and visited other relatives in the area last week. All were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Olson, of East Bethel, at a cookout on July 3.

Thelma Lowery, Betsy Clark, Beatrice Lowell, Louise Tetley, Sylvia Wight and Olive Anderson were at Oxford Lanes, Rumford bowling, July 5. Thelma was high on triple, with one point over Betsy. Betsy was high on single, with two points over Thelma. Both had over 100 on the single.

The Ladies Circle met July 5 at the home of Cindy Moxcey. There was a Show and Tell, with the ladies showing their crafts. They will go to dinner at Far East in Jay, July 14. Anyone wishing to attend should call Olive Anderson at 824-2972 to make reservations. The next meeting will be Aug. 1 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Louise Tetley.

Olive Anderson recently returned home after a trip to Long Island, N.Y. She also visited a cousin in Massachusetts whom she had not seen for 20 years.

THE DROOPY FIGURES OF DROWSY BOARDERS at the Gorman residence, on Mason Street, Bethel, are not real folks at all. They're models made by Janey Gorman. The artistic Janey—who works at Bonnema Potters—makes the lifelike figures from cardboard boxes, vacuum cleaner hoses, old clothing, "whatever I have around," she says. The figures started appearing in the windows this spring, and Janey says she plans to continue developing her cast of characters. They're quite evecatching. "A lot of people stop and look and take pictures," the self-taught sculptor says.

GRAFTING WORKSHOP JULY 23

A workshop on grafting fruit trees is being offered by the Oxford County Cooperative Extension Service in cooperation with Bolster's Mills orchardist George Stilphen.

The workshop will be held on Saturday, July 23, at 10 a.m., at the Stilphen Farm in Bolster's Mills. Workshop participants will get hands-on experience on bud, whip and bark grafting techniques and strategies and will receive an Extension bulletion on grafting.

Call the Extension Office (743-6329) to register for the workshop and for directions to the Stilphen Farm. There is no charge for this workshop.

NORTH LOVELL LIBRARY SCHEDULES OPEN HOUSE

Lewis Dana Hill Memorial Library will have their annual open house Thursday, July 21, 6-9 p.m. The library is located on Route 5 in North Lovell.

At 7 p.m. they will be presenting Martin Engstrom "Winter on Mount Washington."

Regular library hours are Tuesday evenings, 6-9, Saturday morning 9-12.

Greenwood City

By COLISTA MORGAN

As I sit here this morning looking from my window, a red breasted grosbeak eats at the feeder. The fog which rose above the pond at 6 a.m. has vanished above the lush of the mountains. How green they are! The sky is overcast and gray but two moose feeding on the back shore don't mind.

Weather can change very quickly in New England. All New Englanders say, "If you don't like it wait a minute." It's true, too. Following a brief, sharp thunderstorm, the temperature can drop as much as 30 degrees. One can also go to bed in a freeze and wake in the warmth of spring.

I listen to the weather report, not so much to hear the future story of my home, but also to hear about places that are familiar to me. I may be basking in the sunshine, while on Mt. Washington there are snow flurries. Down East I picture surf breaking on reefs of islands, sending up fountains of spray. The lobster boats are out avoiding the patches of fog or bravely plunging into them.

It is not surprising that weather preoccupies the mind, especially in the country. Weather is man's original enemy—the one he cannot defeat but at times can outwit. Only those who have lived close to the land know that it will be lying in wait when things like political upheavals have vanished.

I also know what it's like on a morning in the mountains, especially in the fall. The crimson and gold of maples and among them the graceful ladies, the powdered white birches, while a peak somewhere in the south glimmers ghostly against a gray sky.

Our mountains and forests are truly a priceless legacy of natural beauty.

I have sometimes thought that the most exciting time must have been that of the beginning of the last century. Forests stood in splendor. There was a surplus of fish, trees and trees, green rolling hills and snow-flecked mountains. The beauty and serenity of the scene is now threatened by interlaced highways. We inherited all this loveliness and should strive to keep it that way. Mountains are filled with delights. One of these is the sight of the rising sun, when seen from the summit of Maine's highest mountain, Mount Katahdin, where the first light of each day strikes America.

Mountains, beauties to remember!

My callers this week were Eleanor Inman, town, and Mr. Bernier and granddaughter, of Auburn.

Leon and Fay Holt and I were in Denmark to pick strawberries. John and Dot Betts also picked.

I called on Lettie Brooks in West Paris, Thursday afternoon.

Three moose have entertained us and the people in the passing cars this week. Many who hope to see them have passed at the wrong time.

Visitors at the home of Rena Curtis were Colista Cogswell and Karen and Tylor Green, Freeport; Walter Curtis Jr., Trisia Black and Gloria Curtis, Norway; Donald and Carla Whittermore, Oxford.

CHOOSING A LOG HOME REP IS AS IMPORTANT AS CHOOSING A LOG HOME COMPANY. Who's going to help you with site selection, custom design, pre-planning, cost comparison and financing? Who will be there when your kit arrives? Whose construction experience will you depend on? Sure, a good log home company is important. But a good log home rep is invaluable.

THIS WEEK AT THE

Moses Mason House

Despite the summer heat, a hardy group gathered at the historic East Bethel Church (ca. 1830) for the annual Bethel Historical Society picnic. Following the picnic there was a short business meeting, at which president Marvin Ouwinga announced that the "Artifact of the Month" was a book, "Alphabetical Index, Maine Volunteers, the War of 1861," which was published in 1867 and donated by Ben B. Conant of South Paris. President Ouwinga also announced that the next meeting would be in the continuing series of observances of the Dr. Moses Mason House's 175th anniversary and would feature a presentation on 19th century wall decoration, by Jane Radcliffe, formerly curator of domestic and fine arts at the Maine State Museum. The Dr. Moses Mason House contains outstanding examples of wall murals by Rufus Porter.

After the business portion of the meeting Society Director Stanley R. Howe made a persentation on the Columbian Club of Bethel. It was founded in 1892 and represented the high point in cultural sophistication of any organization up to that time. Director Howe traced briefly the history of cultural activities in the United States from the earliest days through the first half of the 19th century when singing schools and lyceums were popular. He cited Arthur M. Schlesinger Sr.'s book "Learning How to Behave: A historical Study of American Etiquette Books (1946)" as an important work that provides insight into some of the forces that made emphasis on cultural organizations possible and popular during the last half of the 19th century.

The object of Bethel's Columbian Club was to promote self-improvement, the study of culture and sociability. It provided something more to women outside of church activities. In order to become a member, one's name had to be proposed by a member and endorsed by two other members. If approved by the Board of Directors, the candidate became one of the 30 or so who belonged to this rather exclusive club. Members were clustered about Broad Street, historically the most exclusive section of Bethel, but a look at the membership list at various points reveals that women came from all parts of the town. Meetings were held between September and May at two-week intervals, mostly in the homes of Broad Street women, but on occasion were held at other locations. One of the privileges of hosting the gathering was to be able to invite anyone one wished. Other members, on the other hand, were restricted only to non-residents of Bethel.

Meetings were begun with each member answering the roll by providing a quotation, which was discussed by other members. Then a brief business meeting would often ensue followed by the major event of the gathering, a lecture on some aspect of culture, ranging from Grecian history to Titian. This was often followed, especially after Marian True Gehring joined the organization, with a dramatic reading (often by Mrs. Gehring) of some poem or other literary work. Light refreshments were then served.

The Club also did much charity work, raising money by subscription. They bought pictures for local schools, money to build a fountain on the in 1902 and provided the impetus ming the Village Improvement which contributed much to the life on Bethel Hill.

As I sit here this morning looking from my window, a red breasted grosbeak eats at the feeder. The fog which rose above the pond at 6 a.m. has vanished above the lush of the mountains. How green they are! The sky is overcast and gray but two moose feeding on the back shore don't mind.

Weather can change very quickly in New England. All New Englanders say, "If you don't like it wait a minute." It's true, too. Following a brief, sharp thunderstorm, the temperature can drop as much as 30 degrees. One can also go to bed in a freeze and wake in the warmth of spring.

I listen to the weather report, not so much to hear the future story of my home, but also to hear about places that are familiar to me. I may be basking in the sunshine, while on Mt. Washington there are snow flurries. Down East I picture surf breaking on reefs of islands, sending up fountains of spray. The lobster boats are out avoiding the patches of fog or bravely plunging into them.

It is not surprising that weather preoccupies the mind, especially in the country. Weather is man's original enemy — the one he cannot defeat but at times can outwit. Only those who have lived close to the land know that it will be lying in wait when things like political upheavals have vanished.

I also know what it's like on a morning in the mountains, especially in the fall. The crimson and gold of maples and among them the graceful ladies, the powdered white birches, while a peak somewhere in the south glimmers ghostly against a gray sky.

Our mountains and forests are truly a priceless legacy of natural beauty.

I have sometimes thought that the most exciting time must have been that of the beginning of the last century. Forests stood in splendor. There was a surplus of fish, trees and trees, green rolling hills and snow-flecked mountains. The beauty and serenity of the scene is now threatened by interlaced highways. We inherited all this loveliness and should strive to keep it that way. Mountains are filled with delights. One of these is the sight of the rising sun, when seen from the summit of Maine's highest mountain, Mount Katahdin, where the first light of each day strikes America.

Mountains, beauties to remember!

My callers this week were Eleanor Inman, town, and Mr. Bernier and granddaughter, of Auburn.

Leon and Foy Holt and I were in Denmark to pick strawberries. John and Dot Butts also picked.

I called on Lettie Brooks in West Paris, Thursday afternoon.

Three moose have entertained us and the people in the passing cars this week. Many who hope to see them have passed at the wrong time.

Visitors at the home of Rena Curtis were Colista Cogswell and Karen and Tyler Green, Freeport; Walter Curtis Jr., Travis Black and Gloria Curtis, Norway; Donald and Carla Whittermore, Oxford.

THIS WEEK AT THE

Moses Mason House

Despite the summer heat, a hardy group gathered at the historic East Bethel Church (ca. 1830) for the annual Bethel Historical Society picnic. Following the picnic there was a short business meeting, at which president Marvin Ouwinga announced that the "Artifact of the Month" was a book, "Alphabetical Index, Maine Volunteers, the War of 1861," which was published in 1867 and donated by Ben B. Conant of South Paris. President Ouwinga also announced that the next meeting would be in the continuing series of observances of the Dr. Moses Mason House's 175th anniversary and would feature a presentation on 19th century wall decoration, by Jane Radcliffe, formerly curator of domestic and fine arts at the Maine State Museum. The Dr. Moses Mason House contains outstanding examples of wall murals by Rufus Porter.

After the business portion of the meeting Society Director Stanley R. Howe made a persentation on the Columbian Club of Bethel. It was founded in 1892 and represented the high point in cultural sophistication of any organization up to that time. Director Howe traced briefly the history of cultural activities in the United States from the earliest days through the first half of the 19th century when singing schools and lyceums were popular. He cited Arthur M Schlesinger Sr.'s book "Learning How to Behave: A historical Study of American Etiquette Books (1946)" as an important work that provides insight into some of the forces that made emphasis on cultural organizations possible and popular during the last half of the 19th century.

The object of Bethel's Columbian Club was to promote self-improvement, the study of culture and sociability. It provided something more to women outside of church activities. In order to become a member, one's name had to be proposed by a member and endorsed by two other members. If approved by the Board of Directors, the candidate became one of the 30 or so who belonged to this rather exclusive club. Members were clustered about Broad Street, historically the most exclusive section of Bethel, but a look at the membership list at various points reveals that women came from all parts of the town. Meetings were held between September and May at two-week intervals, mostly in the homes of Broad Street women, but on occasion were held at other locations. One of the privileges of hosting the gathering was to be able to invite anyone one wished. Other members, on the other hand, were restricted only to non-residents of Bethel.

Meetings were begun with each member answering the roll by providing a quotation, which was discussed by other members. Then a brief business meeting would often ensue followed by the major event of the gathering, a lecture on some aspect of culture, ranging from Grecian history to Titian. This was often followed, especially after Marian True Gehring joined the organization, with a dramatic reading (often by Mrs. Gehring) of some poem or other literary work. Light refreshments were then served.

The Club also did much charity work, raising money by subscription. They bought pictures for local schools, raised money to build a fountain on the Common in 1902 and provided the impetus for forming the Village Improvement Society, which contributed much to the quality of life on Bethel Hill.

The two dominant figures in the Columbian Club were undoubtedly Mrs. Gehring and Mary Chase Herrick. Many of the meetings were held in their homes, particularly in Mrs. Gehring's. One of the advantages of holding meetings at the Gehring home was that often there were patients at the Gehring Clinic who could discuss cultural subjects. The newspaper columns and the secretary's minutes provide countless names and topics discussed by ladies from Cleveland, Ohio, Boston, Mass., and New York City, among other locations.

Besides enriching the lives of its members, the club was important for its contributions to life in Bethel. No one will ever know how much the pictures donated to local schools contributed to the quality of life there. Books discussed at the Columbian Club often found their way onto the shelves of the Bethel Library. Funds raised by the club improved the Common and life in general on Bethel Hill. It is clear then that the Columbian Club should be seen as an important force in Bethel's social history.

NEWS FROM THE BETHEL AREA

Health Center

Swimmer's ear is a disease in which the skin lining the ear canal becomes read and swollen. It can result from scratching your ears or cleaning them too firmly, but it is most often caused by water being in the ear canal for a long time. The water lessens the skin's normal acidity and causes the top layer of skin cells to come off.

People ordinarily get swimmer's ear in the summer when they are in and out of pools many times a day. Chlorine that is added to pool water to kill unhealthy bacteria also kills helpful bacteria that live in the ear canal.

The combination of the lack of acid, lack of helpful bacteria, and loss of skin cells means the skin has lost its normal protection. It then becomes red and raw, which causes pain and itching in the outer ear.

You can probably cure a mild case of swimmer's ear at home. Don't scratch or clean your ear, and if you are swimming a lot, stop. Wash out the ear with a warm solution of one tablespoon white vinegar and one tablespoon water, or with Vosol from the drugstore. This will clear out wax and dead skin cells and will allow the ear to dry. It will also help the skin maintain its normal acid level.

If the problem doesn't begin to clear up on several days or is very painful, see the doctor. He/she may wash out the ear with acetic acid (vinegar) and water, then give you a prescription for ear drops. The drops are put in 3-4 times a day for five or six days. The drops contain steroids to reduce the swelling, which in turn relieves the pain and itching. The drop also contains an antibiotic in case there is a bacterial infection. It may be more comfortble to warm the ear drops before putting them in. Hold the bottle in your hand or put it in warm water for a few minutes.

Be very gentle when you clean your ears, and never use sharp objects to do it. In fact, doctors now recommend that you not even use cotton swabs, since ear wax comes out by itself. It's enough to wash your outer ears with a washcloth. Cotton swabs can irritate the lining of your ears.

Whenever you swim, make sure you get all the water out of your ears when you come out of the water. If one of your ears is blocked with water, try tugging at your earlobe or tilt your head to one side and hop up and down on the foot on that side. you will feel the water come out.

Some doctors recommend that children who have gotten swimmer's ear several times put two or three drops of equal parts vinegar and 70 percent alcohol in their ears before and after swimming. Doctors also warn against using cotton or poor-fitting earplugs.

Trappers Weekend Aug. 26-28 in E. Bethel will be bigger than ever

Local outdoorsmen are invited to participate in activities planned for the area's largest trappers' convention this August.

The 11th annual New England Trappers Weekend will take place Aug. 26-28 at East Bethel. The event is co-sponsored by Neil D. Olson, a professional trapper and outdoorsman, and Woodstream Corporation, a Pennsylvania manufacturer of hunting, fishing and trapping equipment.

Special family activities Friday and Saturday night will include an auction, dance and skit contest. Special seminars and demonstrations on all aspects of trapping will be conducted throughout the weekend. Meals will be served at the fairgrounds, and unlimited free camping is available.

For more information contact John W. Lisenby, RFD 1, Box 950, Hamden 04444 or call 207-234-2103.

Robert Hoyt visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hoyt, for a couple days.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Glines, Jonathon and Jolyn, visited her mother, Mrs. Helen Ring, over the weekend.

Franklin Grange will meet on Monday, July 18, for Ass't Night in charge of Peggy Blake and Paul Billings. There will be a tasting party.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hoyt, Beatrice Farnum and Mr. and Mrs. David Crockett, Ray and Shawn, joined a cookout at Mr. and Mrs. John Chase's on Monday. Others present were Crystal Chase, Helen Chase, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stevens, Jenny, Keith and Daniel and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Gould and Janice.

Anyone having news for next week please mail it to Bethel Citizen as I will be away a few days. Thank you.

At the Universalist Church, Bryant Pond, recently a supper was given for Rev. and Mrs. Duke T. Gray who will be leaving to be minister of the Univeralist Church in Malden, Mass. Rev. Gray has been serving as the interim minister since September 1986. Rev. David Armstrong will be serving the church as full-time minister starting the first of September. A book was presented to the Grays from church members and friends.

It seems nice to have some warmer weather for a change. It seemed odd to see smoke coming from my neighbors' chimneys the last of June.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Grover visited their daughter and family at Boothbay over the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nelson Sr. had a cookout at their home Saturday, July 2. Thirty-four relatives and friends were there. Mr. Nelson's grandmother, Mrs. Bertha Leonard, was there also. She is 103 years old.

There has been a lawn sale at the Edmund Barker home for a few days.

Paul Taylor, of Nashua, N.H., has been visiting me for the past week.

Mrs. Sharon Traish and two children visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nelson, over the holiday.

Miss Shirley Grant, of Auburn, has been a visitor at the home of her brother.

A large addition is being built on to the schoolhouse and will be a variety store. Frankie Vail is the owner. He also owns the grocery store here.

HOW TO MAKE BAND BOXES

Band Boxes will be the subject of a craft workshop sponsored by SAD #44 Adult and Community Education at the Moses Mason House in Bethel on Tuesday, July 26, from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Donna McCarraher will be the instructor for the hands-on class that will lead participants through the construction of heirloom-quality, heart-shaped, fabric-covered boxes with padded lids and lace or ribbon trim. Participants may bring their own fabric or wallpaper to match their decor, or a kit will be available for purchase from the instructor.

Supplies needed for the class include a paint brush for glue, scissors, a pencil and ruler, a hand towel, an empty margerine tub for mixing glue, and plastic clothespins. Those bringing their own fabric or wallpaper will need 5/8 of a yard of 45" fabric or paper. Participants should bring a lunch.

by Florence Hall

Florence Merrill was the only bus rider to Rumford, on Wednesday, from the Manor.

Alfred Marston, of Portland, daughter Tiffanie and son Christopher were weekend guests of aunt Florence Hall. The men climbed Mt. Speck on Saturday.

Flora Whitten attended a family gathering at the Whitten camp, at Roxbury Pond.

Norman White was in Lewiston for a doctor's appointment recently.

Anne Fox was shopping in Rumford on Tuesday.

Thought for the day:

Some men worship rank, some worship heroes, some worship power, some worship God, and over these ideals they dispute—but they all worship money.
Mark Twain.

Bethel

The past week guests of the Norm Docks were Gretchen Dock of Newton, Mass., Dr. Steve Dock of Washington Park, N.C. and Dr. Carolyn Wilson of Charlottesville, Va.

Tom Ford, a physics teacher at Gould Academy, is among 18 physics teachers from throughout the nation who participated in a two-week physics education conference at Tufts University, July 17-29. The conference was sponsored by the Tufts Center for science and mathematics teaching.

Tom Hutchinson and Frank Vogt, of Bethel, returned recently from a 375-mile canoe trip down the Noatak River, in northwestern Alaska. From its beginning among the glaciers of Mt. Igipak, at 8,510 feet, the highest mountain in the western Brooks Range, the Noatak runs its entire length above the Arctic Circle.

They were part of a six-man group including Doug Brooks, of Randolph, N.H., (son of Don and Eleanor Brooks), Charles Sewall, of Damariscotta, Bernard Heinrich, of Burlington, Vt., and Dan Vogt, of Colchester, Vt., (son of Frank and Janie Vogt).

WHS Class of 1938 celebrates 50th reunion

On Sunday, June 19, the 1938 graduating class of Woodstock High School held its 50th reunion.

Peggy (Linona Yates) Blake hosted the class to a lovely dinner and get-together. The afternoon passed very quickly as the class reminisced; there was so much catching up to do.

The one who traveled the longest distance was Raymond Dunham, and his wife Elisabeth. They live in Rhode Island.

Of the original 13 members graduating, eight were present. Two were unable to attend—Ida (Cushman) Scherf, who lives in Englewood, Fla., and Isabel (Noyes) Brown, who is visiting a son in California.

It was a beautiful, picture-perfect day. Everyone appreciated the thoughtfulness of Peggy for giving the class an opportunity to be together again.

WHAT BETTER WAY of whiling away a summer afternoon than with a game of Monopoly. The budding capitalists (above) are: Nathan Whitworth, Sarah Cohen and Kailin Kavanagh.

ATV WORKSHOP AUG. 7

There will be a hands-on ATV safety workshop offered by the Oxford County Cooperative Extension Service on Sunday, Aug. 7, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., at the Trap Corner Mud Run, at the junction of Routes 26 and 219 in West Paris.

Participants will receive hands-on instruction on how to conduct a pre-ride check, turns and figure 8's, safe riding practices, the law, environmental concerns, and finding places to ride. Participants will be required to bring an ATV that will pass safety inspection. (This does not include 2-wheeled dirt bikes.)

To register, call the Cooperative Extension Service (743-6329) by July 27. They will send you registration materials and a checklist of what you need to bring to the workshop.

Al Barth appointed PR head at Stephens

Alvin L. Barth Jr., of Bethel, has been appointed director of community relations and development at Stephens Memorial Hospital, taking over a position previously held by Daniel R. Marois. Mr. Marois has been named vice president for human resources at the hospital.

Mr. Barth previously held the position of alumni director at Gould Academy. He had worked at Gould for 28 years, first on the science faculty and later as an administrator.

As director of community relations and development, Mr. Barth will be responsible for the hospital's public relations, publications and fund-raising efforts.

Mr. Barth is a graduate of Gould Academy and holds degrees from Pennsylvania State University, the University of Utah and Colby College. He has been a member of the Council for the Aid and Support to Education, the Southern Maine Development Officers Group and the Maine Public Relations Council. Mr. Barth also serves as a member of the board of directors of the Student Educational Enhancement Deposit Plan for the State of Maine, having been appointed by Governor John McKernan.

Although he and his wife Lee live in Bethel, Mr. Barth is very familiar with the Norway/Paris area, having spent summers on Lake Pennesseewassee. He has served as the president of the Lakes Association of Norway and directed the association's water quality monitering program. In addition, he is a member of Christ Episcopal Church in Norway, where he served as a member of the vestry and currently serves as a lay reader.

Mr. Barth said he is very excited about working at Stephens and looks forward to helping the hospital meet the challenges facing rural health care facilities in Maine during the coming years.

Contestants still needed for woodsmen's contest

The Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce and the Bethel Rotary Club will again organize the traditional Mollyockett Day woodsmen's competition. The contests are being arranged in such a way that the average woodsman will be able to compete without purchasing any special equipment. Everyday chainsaws and log rollers will be used, as well as mandatory safety equipment.

There will be five events in the contest: tree fell, tree cut, pulp throw, logrolling and three cut. The prizes will be $50 for first in each event, $25 for second and $10 for third. The overall lumberjack of the year, determined on a point basis, will receive $100. The events are again sponsored by Federal Distributors, G Lewiston.

All interested woodsmen should pic up an entry form (no entry fee) at eithe the Chamber office, Edelweiss Countr Store, or Prim's.

Al Barth appointed PR head at Stephens

Alvin L. Barth Jr., of Bethel, has been appointed director of community relations and development at Stephens Memorial Hospital, taking over a position previously held by Daniel R. Marois. Mr. Marois has been named vice president for human resources at the hospital.

Mr. Barth previously held the position of alumni director at Gould Academy. He had worked at Gould for 28 years, first on the science faculty and later as an administrator.

As director of community relations and development, Mr. Barth will be responsible for the hospital's public relations, publications and fund-raising efforts.

Mr. Barth is a graduate of Gould Academy and holds degrees from Pennsylvania State University, the University of Utah and Colby College. He has been a member of the Council for the Aid and Support to Education, the Southern Maine Development Officers Group and the Maine Public Relations Council. Mr. Barth also serves as a member of the board of directors of the Student Educational Enhancement Deposit Plan for the State of Maine, having been appointed by Governor John McKernan.

Although he and his wife Lee live in Bethel, Mr. Barth is very familiar with the Norway/Paris area, having spent summers on Lake Pennesseewassee. He has served as the president of the Lakes Association of Norway and directed the association's water quality monitering program. In addition, he is a member of Christ Episcopal Church in Norway, where he served as a member of the vestry and currently serves as a lay reader.

Mr. Barth said he is very excited about working at Stephens and looks forward to helping the hospital meet the challenges facing rural health care facilities in Maine during the coming years.

Contestants still needed for woodsmen's contest

The Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce and the Bethel Rotary Club will again organize the traditional Mollyockett Day woodsmen's competition. The contests are being arranged in such a way that the average woodsman will be able to compete without purchasing any special equipment. Everyday chainsaws and log rollers will be used, as well as mandatory safety equipment.

There will be five events in the contest: tree fell, tree cut, pulp throw, logrolling and three cut. The prizes will be $50 for first in each event, $25 for second and $10 for third. The overall lumberjack of the year, determined on a point basis, will receive $100. The events are again sponsored by Federal Distributors, of Lewiston.

All interested woodsmen should pick up an entry form (no entry fee) at either the Chamber office, Edelweiss Country Store, or Prim's.

MARIETTA HEAD RECEIVES SCHOLARSHIP FROM MASONS

Marietta R. Head, of West Bethel, has been awarded a $500 scholarship by the Maine Masons to help her pursue higher education.

She is among 68 graduating high school seniors across Maine planning to attend an accredited college, university or trade school, who are receiving the $500 grants this spring. Each Masonic scholarship winner was chosen on the basis of leadership, citizenship and scholastic achievement.

Masons across the state contributed $34,000 in this first year of the scholarship program effort. Long range goals include creating a scholarship for some deserving senior each year at every one of Maine's 126 public high schools. The scholarship program is the latest example of Masonic commitment to helping people.

Maine Masons have also raised $51,000 this year to fight drug and alcohol abuse among Maine youth. The drug and alcohol abuse fight is a joint effort between Masons and the Maine Department of Education Division of Drug and Alcohol Abuse.

PUBLIC SUPPER JULY 16 AT RUMFORD POINT CHURCH

The Ladies Aid of the Rumford Point Congregational Church will sponsor a baked bean and casserole supper on Saturday, July 16, from 5 to 6:30 p.m. The meal will be served in the church diningroom.

Lynn Ramsey and Dot Adams are co-chairing the supper, and Fran Burns, Louise Morton and Norma Withers will be helping them in the kitchen. Geneva Goddard is in charge of the diningroom committee. Barbara Burns is in charge of publicity.

The menu for the meal will consist of baked beans, casseroles, rolls, brown bread, cole slaw and a large choice of homemade pies.

On July 3 Mrs. Beverly Sylvester hosted a family reunion. Robert Sylvester reported he managed to collect seven out of 10 children. Those attending were Walter Jr., Walter E. III and Stephen, of Milford, Mass., Terry Bouchard of Mexico, Barbara and her son, Todd, Debbi, Tony of Canton, Mary and her daughter, Marcy, and her fiance, Bob, with his daughter, Natasha of Manchester, N.H., Robert and Jason of Milford, Mass., Mike, Melissa and Mike Jr. of Medway, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. Robert DeSpirite, Matthew, Bob Jr., Sharon of Woonsocket, R.I. Mrs. DeSpirite is Mrs. Beverly Sylvester's granddaughter. David and Judy Philbuck and Danielle of Lewiston. David is Beverly's grandson, Andy, Brian, and Jimmy Porter of Woonsocket, R.I., Brenda Desper, Sharon, Bob Jr. of Woonsocket, R.I., Mark Porter of Koline La., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Knight of Bryant Pond and Vern Porter of Medway, Mass. Vern is a friend of the family.

Those children unable to attend were Margaret Squire of Phoenix, Ariz., Francis Ball of Kansas City, Ks., and Ruth S. Barry of Woonsocket, R.I.

An exceptionaly good time was had by all.

Fred Emerson, one of the trustees of the Water District, says the district is not involved in the jurisdictional dispute over who is responsible for repairing the potholes on Main Street—the town or the state. He said the district's digging last winter was adjacent to the biggest pothole, not where the pothole opened up. He pointed out that the potholes are all up and down the street, whereas the water district only dug in the one place.

FRANKLIN GRANGE

Franklin Grange #124 met July 4 when Paris Grange visited and presented an excellent patriotic program for the occasion, as follows.

Song "America," by all. Reading by Russell Yates called "Stars and Stripes." Charles Perry played two accordion solos. Flag tableau with salute to the flag given by all. Marion Bennett read "I am Old Glory." Franklin Grange orchestra played some numbers, one being "Shine on dear Old Maine." Some danced with their wives. Harry Boyer rendered "God Bless America" and "Star Spangled Banner." A quiz on the flag was conducted by Acting Lecturer Marion Bennett. Bertha Benoit sang "Grand Old Flag" while Bertha Kilgore held the flag. Jean Vancour said "The Lord's Prayer." "Origin of our flag" by Olive Risko. "Bless be the tie" was the closing song. The attendance 32—17 from Franklin and visitors 15. The next meeting is July 18 when the assistants will take over.

On Aug. 1 there will be an open meeting with a musical program being the entertainment. Everyone who enjoys music is invited to attend and enjoy it.

CARD OF THANKS

A sincere "Thank you" for the prayers, cards, flowers, food, phone calls and visits while I was hospitalized and since my return home. God bless you all!

THOUGHTS FROM THE

Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life.

"To believe in the one he has sent."

Please read John 6:24-35.

According to John's gospel, the people whom Jesus feeds with the five loaves and two fish come looking for him. They even get into boats and follow him across the Lake of Galilee. When they catch up to him, Jesus has their number:

"You're looking for me, not because you saw a miracle, but because you ate your fill"—and want to again, he might have said.

What he says next leads to one of those keys to life we find scattered through the Gospels: "Do not work for food that spoils, but for food that endures to eternal life..." And what is that work? they ask. "To believe in the one (God) has sent," Jesus replies.

That is hard work. Look at all the other articles in this paper, for instance. How many of them could be said to at least assume that there is a God? Look at all the things people do or say in a normal day. How many of them show a basic belief in God?

Then take it a step further: Among the many people in this world who do acknowledge, even worship, God, how many believe that God sent someone to us, that God entered this world in a way more accessible to humans than God's self-revelation either in nature or in the teachings of prophets and seers?

I'm not calling here for a lot of explicit God-talk that might only poorly express our real faith or that might even involve us in useless arguments because our perceptions of God's activity among us would inevitably differ. I am only asking whether our faith that God sent Jesus to reconcile us to God and our trust in this Jesus, is at least as important to you and me as our concern for where our next meal is coming from.

Our best-known Bible verse affirms that God loves us, that indeed God loved the whole world so much that God gave or sent this person to redeem our lives from insignificance and futility. Does gratitude for that love, that forgiveness, fill our lives? Does it make us want, like Jesus, to live our lives for others?

At the end of these verses from John, the people, changed or at least interested, ask Jesus to give them this food that endures, this heavenly manna. Jesus says, "I am the bread of life. Who comes to me will never go hungry; who believes in me will never thirst." Do we believe him?

Brendon Bass, co-pastor
West Parish Congregational Church

FOREST VOLUNTEERS WANTED

Woodland volunteers from Androscoggin, Sagadahoc and Oxford counties are wanted for training and work with local landowners. The purpose of the program is to improve forest management (for either commercial, recreational, aesthetics or wildlife purposes) in the three counties by providing information and referral to local landowners by volunteers. There is no minimum amount of land required for a landowner to receive this help.

Benefits to the volunteers include 20 hours of training per year by forestry professionals in exchange for 40 hours per year of site visits and phone calls to landowners. The combination of training, support and working on a worthwhile effort to improve local forestry will be a source of satisfaction to volunteers.

If you are a person who is interested in improving local forests and who enjoys working with people, contact (in Oxford County) Frank Wertheim, RFD 2, Box 1735, South Paris 04281, or call 743-6329. An application form will be sent to you.

The program is sponsored by the University of Maine Cooperative Extension Service, the Maine Forest Service and the Small Woodland Owners Association of Maine. The University of Maine Cooperative Extension Service offers its programs to all eligible people regardless of race, color, national origin, religion, sex, age or handicap. The University of Maine Cooperative Extension Service is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Upton

By ARLINE BERNIER

The years bring change and mostly we quickly get used to them and forget about yesterways. Some of these involve mail service. The carrier or stage driver, as us oldtimers are wont to say, used to put each person's mail into that person's personal cloth mail bag. These were quite a variety of fabric: some flat, some drawstring. Much more efficient now to sort into boxes, put a rubber band around each family's portion.

Another change that is certainly more efficient, but diminished some the homey, friendlier lifestyle in that the carrier is not allowed to do errands. He or she used to bring grain, groceries, hardware or other favors for patrons. One mail carrier did not like to be bothered with most of it and acquired a reputation for a poor memory. He told my mother, the Upton postmaster, that he had a good memory. He remembered all he wanted to.

Frank Tucker is spending a few days in town. He entertained Mr. Wilson at supper one evening.

Bill Wood has recovered from a cyst operation and is able to discontinue the antibiotic medication.

The Mae Goodrum trailer site has been cleared of several vehicles and other yard fillers and the Goodrum residents there have moved.

Congratulations to Linda Blais Coulombe on the occasion of her recent marriage in Nashua and to her parents, Albert and Therese Blais, of Upton.

Congratulations to Karen Douglass on her award of an undergraduate fellowship in journalism.

We have lots of company and customers lately and are glad not to have each ask, "How come your road is so bad?," with follow-up remarks, suggestions and opinions, as the road has been graded and improved.

West Bethel

By HARRIETT STOWELL

Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Lovejoy and Diana and Shanna Walker were in Rumford, Wednesday evening, to attend a surprise birthday party for Dorothy West. The party was planned by her husband and children.

Andrew and Marlene Stowell and children, of Jackman, returned to their home after spending several days with his parents. While here they all attended a family picnic at the home of George and Mary Stowell, in Falmouth, with 32 present.

Callers at Frances Bennett's on Friday were Mr. and Mrs. Gary Treamer and sons, of Brookville, Ill., Roland Hayes of, Manchester, N.H., and James Holmes, of Somerville, Mass.

Lt. and Mrs. Robert Everett of Viginia City, Va., have recently spent several days visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Everett, of Mason, and other relatives.

News from the Bethel Recreation Board

Excitement and expectation is on the rise going into the close of the baseball season. Restraining the players from their loud and cracking bats is a minor problem that's being ironed out readying for the upcoming playoffs, which are just in sight.

Coach Dakin of the Greens surprised himself last week when he decided to change players. He brought Jason Hebert and Travis Laughton from the outfield to play the infield for the first time. He commented that they played an outstanding game. There were three home runs in the game—by Matt Laughton, Keith Stevens and John Tester. Great teamwork gave the Greens an 18-8 win over the Bryant Pond A's.

The Bethel Reds played their best game of the year, according to Coach Fiske. He said they played a heads-up ball game, playing very well defensively. Waymin "Scooter" Mills had a real good game. The July 5 game at the Bryant Pond B field netted the Reds a 21-12 win packed with plenty of action.

Highlights of the Blues versus Rumford Point is as follows: Chuck Mason came out of his batting slump with a long drive that bounced over the center field fence, according to Coach Murphy. He said he effectively defended center with several fine catches. Tim Adams again dominates first base seldom missing a ball. Uljas Murphy's bat was alive, driving in several runs. He also surprised his coach with a fine catch of a hard grounder and excellent throw to first. Clint Myers snatched a potential double out of the air and turned it into a double play by running the base runner down himself. The Bethel Blues romped to a 21-7 win over Rumford Point.

The Red Sox met with Andover at home field on July 6 for an action packed game. On the pitching mound Clint Myers got them right in there for the first three innings with Travis York finishing out the last three, which gave the Sox a 9-4 win over Andover.

It was a see-saw battle for the Braves and Rumford Point, ending in a very close 7-6 win for the Braves. There were two runs scored in the first inning and one in the third. Rumford Point scored three in the bottom of the third to tie the game. The Braves scored three in the top of the fifth, then Rumford Point scored three in the bottom of the fifth. The Braves scored one run in the top of the sixth on Josh Otten's home run. Rumford Point came to bat in the bottom of the sixth. Tim Remington pitched the whole game to strike out the side to end the game. Tim gave up seven hits, struck out 13 and walked only one. He was perfect at the plate, getting two hits in two at-bats, scored two runs, walked twice. His two hits were both triples.

Steve Remington, in his first game (fresh back from Spain), had two hits, three at-bats and scored three runs.

Nate Harvey played an excellent defensive game at third base. He had a base hit from his one at-bat. He hurt his thumb in the third inning and was taken out of the game, regretfully, by Coach Remington, thus ending his great playing streak.

The Braves and the Greens still have no losses.

We haven't forgotten the T-Ballers, who have been hard at it this summer with Coach Jim Osgood and his faithful parent helpers. The players demonstrated great action practice last week amidst a fun time with friends as well as teammates.

As predicted, there will be a good representation of Bethel players in the double-elimination baseball tournament in Farmington, July 14-17, sponsored by the Elks Club. Players chosen from the Bethel Braves are: Josh Otten, Steve Remington, Tim Remington, Adam Taylor, Tyrel Bartholomew and Jason Fraser as alernate.

From the Red Sox: Adam Hart.

We encourage all baseball lovers to lend support to these young athletes by attending the first game, which is Thursday, July 14. Game time: 4:30 p.m. at the Elks Field.

Alexander, King of Jesters, will be in Bethel for Mollyocket Day. The Mahoosuc Arts Council is once again able to bring to the area a talent that will be enjoyed by all ages. The King of Jesters comes to this area from Massachusetts and is well known throughout New England. His combination of juggling, acrobatics and mime have built for him a fine reputation. Alexander will appear at 12:15 on the Bethel Common, on Mollyocket Day, Saturday, July 16.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Pursuant to Title 28 MRSA 252—a notice is hereby given that a Public Hearing will be held on July 18, 1988 at 7:00 P.M. at the Bethel Town Office to consider a liquor license application from Sandjack Investments d/b/a Four Seasons Inn located on Main Street in Bethel, Maine. Public comment will be heard at that time. Prior to the hearing date written comment may be given to the Bethel Town Office.

North Paris
By DORIS C. LAWRENCE

Hope everyone had a safe and happy holiday. A lot of families having reunions and parties. The weather sure was beautiful.

Joe Vatcher had new peas from his garden, July 4.

Sympathy goes out to the family of Erlon Whitman. He raised the best squash and corn. What a sense of humor he had.

Bob Ilsley and Joe Vatcher have been busy picking strawberries and fishing. A blessing for Joe that Bob is home on furlough.

A lot of relatives from North Paris attended the bridal shower for Becky Record Tuesday evening, on her approaching marriage, July 9, to Scott Coffin. The wedding will be at North Paris Federated Church and the reception held immediately following at the North Paris Community Hall.

Callers at Joe Vatcher's: Bob Ilsley, Mr. and Mrs. Cleon Pinkham, and his sister Fannie Whitten, has been spending some time with Joe. What a comfort.

Mrs. Florence Ilsley has been to Amesbury, Mass. celebrating her 101st birthday with her daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Root Lawrence's callers have been Mr. and Mrs. Odell Heath, Mr. and Mrs. Cleon Pinkham, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Millett, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Coffin, Mrs. Donna Rause, Jodi and Jesse from South Carolina, Joe Vatcher, Bob Ilsley, Barbara Gallant, Joe Kalnowski, Richard Felt and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Downing.

Callers at Arnold Coffin's have been James Coffin, Joe Vatcher, Bob Ilsley, Mr. and Mrs. Cleon Pinkham, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Abbott, Donna Rause, Jodi and Jesse from South Carolina and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Coffin.

Mrs. Marie Caldwell has her arm out of a sling finally.

Fred Katthaus arrived this week to spend some time with his grandmother, Evelyn Chamberlain.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ilsley and Robert Jr. left for Holland.

LOCAL ARTIST WINS AWARD

Romeo Baker, who showed his works at the Norway Sidewalk Art Festival last week, was one of the winners of a purchase award. The Bethel Savings Bank purchased one of the Newry painter's ski scenes. Wife Jo Baker was also an exhibitor at the art festival.

RENA H. FALKENHAM

Rena H. Falkenham, 87, died Thursday, July 7, at the Ledgeview Nursing Home in West Paris.

She was a resident of Andover, where she had lived all of her life. She was born in Andover, Aug. 20, 1900, the daughter of Herbert and Myrtle Dunn Hutchins. She attended Andover schools and was a member of the Ellis Glen Temple, Pythian Sisters of Andover. She was married in Andover to Joseph Lee Falkenham, who survives, of Andover.

Others survivors include one son, Harold G. Falkenham of Andover; one sister, Mrs. Agnes Avery of Kennebunkport; two brothers, Basil and Bernard Hutchins, both of East Andover; two grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Sunday, July 10, at Meader and Son Funeral Home. Reverend Donald Grover officiated. Interment was in Woodlawn Cemetery, in Andover.

First aid course offered

Multi-media First Aid and CPR are upcoming short courses offered by the SAD #44 Adult and Community Education program.

These programs are especially designed by the Red Cross to provide an intensive training experience for those needing a basic knowledge of first aid or certification to meet work or volunteer requirements. Jeannine Thornton of the Bethel Area Health Center staff is the instructor.

Multi-media First Aid, which makes extensive use of video, will be offered on July 19 and 20 from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m., at Telstar Regional High School. CPR will be held the following week, on July 26 and 27, from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The cost for each course is $15. To enroll, call SAD #44 Adult and Community Education, 824-2780.

Notes from the

Woodstock Historical Society

Here is some history for you:

"The Chautauqua movement began as a traveling series of popular adult lectures and discussions. In those days, before television and mass communication, people regularly gathered at lyceums, revivals, campgrounds and one another's homes to discuss the news and to debate the issues of the day "Roxanne Pulitzer

Woodstock once had a Chautauqua Society.

FARNUM-BUCK REUNION

The 85th reunion of the Nathaniel Jackson Farnum and Bathsheba Buck decendants will be held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Brown, at North Pond in Norway, on Sunday, July 17, from 1 to 3 p.m.

Family members attending are urged to bring a list of the members of the two families who at one time served in the armed services during wartime. They are also encouraged to bring pictures of members of either family, now deceased, of past generations. Such pictures will be placed on display and returned at the end of the day's activities.

There will be a cookout for individual families attending, including hamburg, hot dogs, sandwiches, etc. Cold drinks will be provided by the association. Each individual family will be contacted by a member of the dinner committee relative to bringing salads and desserts.

Newry Town Office

The Newry Board of Selectmen met Tuesday morning, June 28. Fire Chief Virgil Conkright reported that his application for a grant from the State Forestry Service to purchase a radio for the fire department had been approved. Under the terms of the grant, the town will purchase two radios for the fire department at a cost of $720 each. The town will then be reimbursed for the price of one radio. The selectmen authorized Chief Conkright to go ahead with the purchase.

Approximately 1,200 tax bills were mailed out. This year's tax rate is $7.20 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

The selectmen spent much of the morning preparing reports for the Agricultural Statistician of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

A Painting Bee is being planned for July 23, starting at 9 a.m., to paint the new fire station. Anyone wishing to donate labor or refreshments for the laborers may contact Chief Conkright or the town office.

The selectmen met Tuesday morning, July 5. Final plans were reviewed for the new ambulance service to serve the 11 towns formerly served by Keegan's Ambulance Service. Newry's payment, based on $4.75 per capita, was made for the six month period, July 1-Dec. 31.

One taxpayer called as his Veteran's Exemption has been omitted from his tax bill. Other Veteran's Exemptions were checked and it was found that two others had been omitted. Abatements were made to cover these.

Johnathan Smith met with the selectmen and reports needed on taxes, property, etc. were discussed. These reports will be provided.

The selectmen wish to remind everyone that the date for the painting bee to paint the new fire station will be July 23. Volunteers are being sought to furnish refreshments for the painters while they are painting.

ANN CROSS AND BETSY RAYMOND hold up the quilt the Bethel Library is raffling off. The winning raffle ticket will be drawn this Saturday, Mollyockett Day. Raffle tickets ($1) are available at the Library for the handsome quilt, which was made by Mrs. Raymond.
